Inflation Pushed Despite G. O. P. Attacks

Today

The Little Man, as Usual.
Big Day, Number Three.
Your Wonderful Brain.
Welcome, MacDonald.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

EVERY RICH man in America, from banker to bootlegger, asks every other rich man what leaving the gold basis means. Those that need to ask the question are men on small salaries. Prices of food and other necessities will go higher, but their salaries will not go higher—or, at best, rise slowly.

IT WOULD have been a good idea to have left the gold basis before nation-wide salary reductions were forced on employers.

As usual, when big things happen it is the "little man" who gets hit. In war he gets shot. In panics he is poor. In depressions his wages go down. Off the gold basis, his dollar is worthless. But he is very patient.

ANOTHER BIG Wall Street day, 5,000,000 shares sold, not as big as Thursday, prices not so gay. The dollar recovered its health and went up a little. That discouraged stock prices. It was the turn of European money to drop.

Anybody who imagined that the United States would print unlimited quantities of money, simply because green paper is cheap, made a mistake.

IT SHOULD fill you with pride to know that you have in your brain "four quadrillions of electric motors that generate power for thought." Four quadrillions is a good many.

Put down 4, with fifteen zeros after it, thus 4,000,000,000,000,000, and you have it.

You get this gratifying information from Dr. George W. Crile, of Cleveland, a really great scientist. In the Bible man says:

"I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

Dr. Crile proves it for him. Dr. Crile says:

"Mind is a product of electricity generated by matter."

The brain, if you please, produces short-wave and infra-red radiation. Electros are ejected from the brain protoplasm with the omission of these waves, and:

"These electrons set up the electric current responsible for all our thinking and reasoning processes."

YOUR ADRENAL gland, located just over the kidneys, is the brain's power station, and "collaborates with a hormone in the thyroid gland," which is in your neck. And that queer hormone is your real ruler.

Such strange news might disturb a feeble mind, making it doubt the existence of a soul or a creator. Nobody has yet told us, however, what power created the "four quadrillion motors."

MacDonald says he comes to discuss "war on unmerited poverty." Not quite all the poverty is "unmerited." Whoever started that big war deserves all he got and more.

But nobody will ever know who started it, who the "Mrs. O'Leary's cow" was that kicked over that lantern. Perhaps no one started it and it just happened. When will it "happen" again?

THE NEW giant dirigible Macon, on its trial flight, carried 105 persons, including eleven officers, thirty-one engineers, eight members of the naval board of inspection and Goodyear-Zeppelin Company inspectors. The biggest airship in existence, 785 feet long, it typifies Uncle Sam's determination not to let anything discourage him.

IF GERMANY can build and operate dirigibles safely, this country can do it, and will prove it.

Meanwhile, the mismanagement, or whatever it was, that caused the loss of the Akron should be investigated carefully. A ship nearly 800 feet long, flying only 1,600 feet above the ocean, about twice her own length, and flying directly into a thunderstorm, with its terrific up and down air currents, was not fairly treated, to put it moderately, and the destruction should not be dismissed as "an act of God."

MUSSOLINI AND the rest of Italy yesterday celebrated Rome's birthday, number two thousand six hundred and eighty-six. An old age, but, thanks to Mussolini, Rome is younger than ever.

As part of the celebration, Mussolini dedicated statues of five emperors, erected by his orders on the Via del Impero, "Street of the Empire." Stores, schools, public offices were closed. Mussolini builds his power on patriotism.

MAX GREENBURG, chief of a New Jersey "beer gang" recently murdered, in the course of his professional duties, carried a list of 37 names. Opposite some he had written "Don't try;" opposite others "O. K."

He wrote numbers and makes of automobiles used by the 37. And, it may interest you mildly, all were names of gentlemen on the government payroll supposed to enforce prohibition. What could the "O. K." and the "Don't try" mean?

ILL WAR VET MURDERED ON MOUND

Believe McKees Rocks Man Killed With Spading Fork

The battered body of a man believed to have been a World War veteran, was found on the Indian Mound near Ella street extension, McKees Rocks today.

County detectives said they believed the man had been slain with a spading fork or some other instrument with tongs as several deep punctures were found on the head.

Coroner's deputies found marking on his clothing indicating the slain man was Stanley Kuzski, 35, of 311 Olivia street, McKees Rocks.

He wore a hospital shirt and underclothing. Inquiry at the county home at Woodville disclosed that a man named Kuzski, residing at the McKees Rocks address, had been discharged from the hospital February 24, after being held for four months for observation. He was a mental patient, attaches said.

The grass and weeds at the spot where the body was found were tampled, indicating a struggle.

4 YOUTHS HELD AFTER CHASE

After a chase of more than a dozen blocks in Lawrenceville early today, four youths were arrested by radio police, accused of the theft of an automobile and the looting of a Washington (Pa.) store of 4,000 packages of chewing gum.

As the officers approached the fugitive automobile which they had forced to the curb at Thirty-seventh and Mintwood streets, one of the quartet, police said, drew a gun and threatened Patrolman Ray Adams. Drawing his own gun, Adams disarmed the youth.

The boys admitted, police said, that after taking R. F. Rhodes' automobile, parked in front of the Arlington Apartments at Center and Aiken avenues, they drove to Washington, where they broke into the Birch & Sons store at 28 Jefferson street.

The youths, charged with being suspicious persons at Forty-third Street Police Station, said they were Joseph Gukowski, 17, of 3604 Melville street; Matthew Jalxki, 18, of 217 Thirty-sixth street, and a fourth whose name the Sun-Telegraph will not publish because of his age. He is 15.

Chicago Man Slain, Girl Friend Kidnaped

CHICAGO, April 22.—(INS.)—Two gunmen early today shot and killed Frank X. Holbrook, 58, and kidnaped his companion, Miss Lillian Nance, 17, as they left a West Side drinking place.

After shooting Holbrook, the trio forced the girl into their automobile and sped away. Holbrook was a circulation department executive of a Chicago newspaper.

Rich Victim Traps Plot Suspect

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—(AP.)—Threatened with "ruthless, cruel and vicious death" unless he paid $100,000, Lessing J. Rosenwald, millionaire chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., aided police in capturing the alleged extortionist by engaging him in a telephone conversation.

While the wealthy executive and art connoisseur listened to the man give him directions for paying the money, police, who had traced the call, sped to a cigar store in North Philadelphia late last night and arrested the suspect.

'DESPERATE FOR MONEY'

He gave his name as Charles Weil, 29, an unemployed clerk, and police said he made a complete confession early today. Police quoted him:

"I didn't really mean to do Mr. Rosenwald any bodily harm. It was just that I was so desperate for money."

Rosenwald received three of the extortion notes, the first on March 20, instructing him to "wait seven days" for further directions, the note warned:

"Think of Rothstein, Broadway big shot, going out of business in the Park Central Hotel some time in the past. Another affair a little closer to home, which might be food for thought, is what became of Mickey Duffy (small-time punk) from your own home town while dreaming in an Atlantic City hotel."

The missive was signed:

"Organization."

Promptly on March 27, the second threat arrived and ordered Rosenwald to leave the money in $50 and $20 bills at a lonely spot on the Roosevelt boulevard in the northeastern section of the city.

AVOIDS FIRST TRAP

Both letters had been turned over to police and on the day appointed detectives planted a dummy package at the spot named, but it remained untouched. However, the investigators said Weil was seen nearby and was placed under surveillance.

A third letter on April 13, reducing the demand to $75,000, but repeating the threats against Rosenwald and his family, was received. This communication changed the place at which the money was to be left, specifying a fire hydrant in the Frankford section.

Rosenwald received several telephone calls from the extortionist and police accordingly had tapped the wires early in the case.

Last night an operator listening in at police headquarters heard the Rosenwald number called and at first mention of the $75,000 note, radio patrol cars were rushed to the cigar store.

Weil was seized in the telephone booth.

Crop-Killing Frost Due Tonight

A killing frost is scheduled to envelope the Pittsburgh district tonight. Temperatures ranging from 32 to 36 are predicted by Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

In some of the valleys, he said the temperature probably would go below freezing. Peaches and cherries now in bloom, he believed, frost, but other tender vegetation will be able to withstand the will be killed.

Sunday is to be fair, he said.

Lost in Endless Cave, Boys Battle Bats

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 22.—(AP.)—Lost for 30 hours in the subterranean labyrinths of Delaney's "Endless" Cave near here, two youthful explorers were recounting their experiences today.

John Rockewell, 18, of New Salem, and James Harford, Jr., of Messmore, were met as they emerged after a day and a night of wandering by a searching party organized by Harford's father.

The boys said their searchlights were extinguished by dampness. They had no food. Harford said:

"We could hear water gurgling and several times we fell, fighting the bats."

Scientists have said the passages leading from this cave may extend to the equally endless Mammoth Caves of Kentucky.

The boys entered the cave Thursday.

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS SPUR MEASURE

Reed Denies Effort To Filibuster On Bill

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP.)—Senate Democrats moved steadily forward today despite the Republican storm raging around the administration's controlled inflation plan, ready to strike and drive the legislation through at the first break in the clouds.

Heeding emphatic word from President Roosevelt that he regards prompt enactment of the measure as essential to his general reconstruction program, arrangements were made to take it up in the Senate at the first opportunity, probably late today.

G. O. P. ATTACKS

But the severe indictment of its provisions and aims from the pen of four prominent Republican members of the Senate and House foretold the bitter denunciation to come before the President's proposal for complete power over inflationary moves is granted him.

Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Walcott, of Connecticut, and Representative Snell, of New York, and Luce, of Massachusetts, issued a thousand-word statement last night, asserting the controlled inflation plan will "bring no permanent prosperity," that it "vio-

CLARK PACKS, QUITS OFFICE

Public Safety Director James M. Clark today had packed up his personal effects and departed from the City-County Building. Moving day for Clark reached its finale at 1 a. m. when, with his wife, his chief clerk and four city firemen, he took his personal belongings and left his office.

Twelve hours earlier he had received a list of police dismissals and transfers which he was expected to "O. K." Without signing the paper, he went to the ball game.

When he returned he began removing pictures and cartoons from the walls of his office, then ransacked his desk for notes, papers and other articles accumulated during his seven years as head of the Public Safety Department.

EVICTION DENIED

When his belongings had been carried out he handed to Chief Clerk Robert Brown the keys of the office, to be turned over to his successor, Harmar D. Denny.

Hitler to Force Jews From Trade

BERLIN, April 22.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler has taken action to remove Jews, Socialists and Communists from engineering and technical professions in Germany.

Gottfried Feder, as head of the Reich's Technical Society, representing 80 professional scientific organizations, has been commissioned to remove "alien elements from German technics" and to make "technics serve the general welfare."

Norman Abandons Voyage to Bombay

MARSEILLES, France, April 22.—(AP.)—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, came here on his way to India, but suddenly changed his plans today, sailing back to England on the Steamship Comorin.

STOCKS SWEEP UPWARD AGAIN

Led by metal and rail issues, the market resumed its advance in a whirl of activity that swiftly converted early losses of $1 to $2 into gains of larger proportions and the over-burdened ticker tape fell several minutes behind.

Net advances ranged from $1 to more than $4 for a wide variety of favorite issues and sales reached the large Saturday volume of approximately 2,300,000 shares.

The heavy profit-taking yesterday and at the opening this morning appeared to have helped the market to its fresh start. The closing tone was strong.

Drug Store Looted Of 4 Cases of Beer

A customer's request for beer in the Friendship Pharmacy, Forty-fifth street and Penn avenue, led to a discovery yesterday that four cases of beer had been stolen during the night, according to report to city detectives. Tobacco and razor blades also were taken. The rear door was jimmied, the report stated.

Developments In Economic Situation

Associated Press.

The economic situation in brief:

1—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald, in earnest discussion of methods of regaining prosperity, reach mutual understanding of viewpoints. Britain willing to discuss stabilization of world currencies on a revised standard.

2—Democrats press for early passage of President Roosevelt's $3,000,000,000 controlled-inflation program measure, which may come up in Senate late today.

3—Four prominent Republicans, led by Senator Reed, with former Secretary Ogden L. Mills approving, attack inflation plan, saying it violates "most elementary principles" of economics.

4—French cabinet decides to maintain gold standard.

5—Soviet-British trade war threatens, Russia, replying to British embargo order, decrees complete halt to purchases from Britain.

Monessen Banker, Church Leader Dies

MONESSEN, Pa., April 22.—Frank H. Steen, 54, vice president of the Peoples National Bank and Trust Company, of Monessen, died today after a heart attack, in his Belle Vernon home. He was secretary of the Fayette County Sunday School Association and a director of the Pennsylvania State Sunday School Association. He leaves his wife, two sons and a daughter.

MACDONALD, F. R. WORK FOR AMITY

U. S. Denies Plan for Retaliation in Gold Move

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP.)—World money stabilization, aimed to raise commodity prices by reduction of the amount of gold behind national currency units, took a foremost place as American and British leaders conferred today at the White House.

From the moment that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, sat down with their advisers, the emphasis placed by the President on the international money situation was plain to all present.

EUROPE ASSURED

Furthermore, extreme care was taken to assure not only the British statesmen, but those of other great countries coming to confer with Mr. Roosevelt as well, that the United States' departure from the gold standard was dictated by domestic requirements and not by any design for advantage to this country in these world economic conversations.

The White House meeting, in which the two principals, meeting to take up where they left off last night, included for the first time advisers. It took place in the Oval Room.

Secretary Hull headed Mr. Roosevelt's staff, and Ambassador Lindsay, of Great Britain, was by the side of the Prime Minister.

With an eye to the coming of former Premier Herriot, of France, Secretary Hull had told reporters there had been no departure from the previously expressed stand that the administration could not say whether it would discuss war debts with any nation in default on its payments.

DEBTS ISSUE

War debts were taken into consideration at today's meeting, but it remained to be seen in just what respect. Over all was the determination by the President to work for straightening the money question, in the interest of world trade in general.

As to the maneuver for reduction in the gold bases back of all currencies, the visitors learned that Mr. Roosevelt felt such a move would permit the issuance of increased quantities of currency against the present gold re-

REED DISCLAIMS MELLON AID

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, heading the opposition to President Roosevelt's inflation program, was quoted today as saying he had not discussed the subject with Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, now in Washington.

Questioned concerning Mellon's view of inflation, Reed said he had tried in vain to reach Mr. Mellon by telephone. He added:

"I cannot say what he thinks of it because I have not discussed it with him. Of course, if I had to make a guess, I would say he would be as much opposed to the proposal as I am.

"I saw Mr. Mellon here last week but we naturally did not discuss this proposal because it had not been broached then."

Rolls-Royce Founder Dies in England

WEST WITTERING, England, April 22.—(AP.)—Sir Henry Royce, joint founder with C. S. Rolls, of the Rolls-Royce, Limited, motor car and airplane engine makers, died today in his seventy-first year. He had been bedridden six months.

In his youth he was apprenticed as an engineer with the Great Northern Railway, worked at gun machinery in Leeds and was chief engineer of street lighting work in Liverpool.

Found Minus Pants And Shoes in Street

John Nailich, 57, of 3269 Bainton street, was found trouserless and shoeless behind a billboard at Lacock and West Canal street early today. Nailich was unable to tell police how he had come to lose his garments.

Thieves Get 4 Guns, Jewelry and Money

Thieves forced entry into the home of Mike Shally, 1928 Sidney street, and escaped with $28 cash, four revolvers, three rings and three watches valued at $300, according to a report to police.

Wanamaker Wasted Million, Court Told

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 22.—(AP.)—Accusing Capt. John Wanamaker, Jr., son of the late Rodman Wanamaker, of "frittering away $1,200,000 since 1928," counsel for his divorced wife and two children seeks to prevent reduction of the order directing payment of $27,500 yearly for their support.

Joseph L. Gilfillan, the attorney, told Judge Harold G. Knight that Wanamaker had paid only $100,000 on the support order since 1928, and that since then he had "frittered away $1,200,000" of the $1,700,000 he received in that time from his father's estate.

Gilfillan asserts Capt. Wanamaker maintains six automobiles, a yacht, pays $10,000 a year rent for his New York apartment, maintaining a retinue of servants and pays $1,500 monthly for the establishment's upkeep.

Attorneys for Capt. Wanamaker contend the support order should be reduced, as his income last year totaled $226,000 and would be reduced this year to $88,000.

Judge Knight reserved decision.

HERRIOT TOLD TO FIND OUT U. S. PLANS

Paris Seeks Speedy Convening of World Parley

PARIS, April 22. — (AP.) — France declared today for maintenance of the gold standard.

After the first cabinet meeting to consider the present monetary situation, Finance Minister Georges Bonnet said the government hopes "all countries will return to gold as soon as possible."

Former Premier Edouard Herriot, arriving in New York tomorrow, was sent new instructions by the cabinet and told to inquire immediately from President Roosevelt as to his intentions in removing the United States from the gold standard.

He was told to inquire whether the action was temporary or the beginning of a definite policy toward devalorization.

It was stated the cabinet surveyed the situation without alarm and decided to urge the speediest possible meeting of the world economic conference.

Government commercial experts, it was learned, believe that the dollar will approach par and consider it unnecessary at present to impose an exchange tax or tariff measures against a possible "invasion" of American goods.

LONDON, April 22.—(AP.)—Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail declared today that payment of Great Britain's war debts to the United States is now impossible.

The paper said the abandonment of the gold standard by the United States made it "entirely beyond our power to continue the payment of the debt instalments."

SOVIET STRIKES BACK AT BRITAIN

MOSCOW, April 22.—(AP.)—Soviet Russia, striking back today at Great Britain, ordered a complete embargo on British goods and drastic measures against the shipping of the Mistress of the Seas.

Heralding the possible approach of an economic war of historic proportions, the Soviet government's decrees will become effective Wednesday if Britain goes through with its plan to invoke an 80 per cent embargo on Russian goods on that date.

Earlier foreign circles here had expressed expectations that the two British engineers, whose imprisonment on charges of sabotage and espionage started the trade war, would be released and deported with a week. It was considered likely that if the men, William L. MacDonald and L. C. Thornton, are released, England will call off its embargo, thus ending the trade controversy.

LONDON, April 22.—(AP.)—Russia's sudden prohibition of all trade with England, in retaliation for the 80 per cent British embargo against Russian goods will not affect the London government's stand, it was authoritatively stated today.

While the action of the Soviets came as a surprise to the general public it was not unexpected by the government, which had rather anticipated some such move.

Brownsville Road Boy Hurt by Stone

Struck by a stone from a hillside near his home, Francis O'Shea, 8, of 801 Arlington avenue, was in the South Side Hospital today. The boy was playing with a group of children when injured.

Police were undetermined whether the stone had been thrown or slipped from the hillside.

Clark Packs, Leaves Office to Successor

Jr., whose appointment goes to Council Monday.

Clark, Public Safety Department employes, building attendants and all other about the City-County building branded as ridiculous a report that he had been evicted from his office.

After a star chamber conference yesterday in the office of Superintendent of Police Franklin T. McQuaide, which the new director attended, a list of police demotions, transfers and promotions was agreed upon.

Clark, ignored, was unaware that such a conference had taken place until he was handed the shakeup list by an employe from McQuaide's office. The clerk said:

"Here is the list of changes the superintendent sent over. He wants you to look them over and approve them."

CLARK SURPRISED

Clark's reply was, as he scanned the list:

"Huh, I have been hearing a lot about a shakeup lately, but when did this take place?"

In the meantime, Supt. McQuaide notified newspapermen that the first shakeup in the new Herron administration was ready for announcement.

Said McQuaide:

"I might see the director at the game. I'll ask him about the list and if he approves it, I will let you fellows know after the game."

Clark and Denny met at the game, but did not talk of police affairs.

Both Clark and McQuaide returned to their offices after the game, but did not go into conference. Clark's final remarks were:

"This list means nothing to me. It does not bear the Mayor's signature.

"I can't understand why I should take orders from my subordinate. Heretofore it has always been the custom in announcing a shakeup that a communication of this nature came from the Mayor's office. I will not approve such a list. I am not going to be the goat."

CHANGES REPORTED

Although neither McQuaide nor Clark would reveal the names, it was reliably learned that Senior Capts. Harry Mellon, of the Downtown and Hill districts, and Dennis Hennessey, of the South Side district, were demoted, Mellon to a city detective and Hennessey to a lieutenant. Both are former inspectors.

Senior Capts. Anthony Block, North Side; Charles Cahill, of the "Strip;" Albert Beebe, Mt. Washington, and Bernard Kirley, East End, were not included in the shakeup in so far as demotions were concerned. However, Beebe is scheduled to succeed Hennessey on the South Side.

Junior Capt. John Schnurr will be promoted to senior captain, succeeding Mellon in the Downtown and Hill districts. Lieut. Harry Schunk will be promoted to junior captain, staying in the Downtown district. Lieut. Edward Moser will be promoted to jjunior captain and assigned to the South Side district.

City Detective John Hooper, personal appointee of former Supt. Walsh will demoted to patrolman. Another city detective, George Owens, a former sanitary inspector, is to retire on pension. Former City Detectives William O'Bryan and Robert Patton, retired on pension several months ago, will be appointed city detectives.

VARE GIVES AID TO BEER BILL

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—(INS.)—Prospects for enactment of beer legislation were considered brighter today after William S. Vare, veteran Republican leader, joined forces with Gen. Edward Martin, state Republican chairman, in an agreement to "go along" with the demand of Gov. Pinchot that authority for licensing beer dealers be vested in county treasurers.

The Philadelphia legislative delegation thus abandoned its demands that the licensing power be placed in the hands of county judges and the step was believed in political circles here to presage passage of the compromise beer control measure offered by Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware.

Representative Clinton A. Sowers, of Philadelphia, co-sponsor of the beer bill vetoed this week by the Governor, declared he will continue to oppose the executive's demands. On his return to Harrisburg, Sowers said he plans to offer a new bill.

Ellenbogen Asks Wage Quiz at Lock

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(INS.)—Investigation of wages paid laborers on the new lock and dam at Aspinwall, on the Allegheny River, was urged upon Secretary of War Dern yesterday by Representative-elect Ellenbogen (Dem.), of Pennsylvania.

The department has authority to see that adequate wages are paid, Ellenbogen insisted.

INFLATION BILL PRESSED BY DEMOCRATS

Vigorous Republican Attacks Fail to Halt Drive

lates the most elementary principles" of economics and is "better designed to defeat than promote business recovery."

The Republican attack was prepared in conferences attended by Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury under President Hoover, and was issued a few hours after Representative Dies, (Dem.), of Texas, had introduced a resolution in the House calling for an investigation of lobbyists in general and Mills in particular.

DEMOCRATS FIRM

The Democratic reply to this crystallization of opposition was a renewed determination to let the storm blow out its fury and then roll up the overwhelming Democratic majority to batter the legislation through both houses.

Leaders took note of Mr. Roosevelt's desire for such an instrument in negotiating with foreign statesmen for international agreements to stabilize currencies and promote trade revival.

The President now is engaged in the first of those international discussions, having as his guest in the White House the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Ramsay MacDonald. Over the weekend they will explore every possibility for co-operation in achieving world prosperity.

The controlled inflation measure, introduced by Senator Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, as an amendment to the administration farm bill, will be made the pending business of the Senate as soon as the mortgage refinancing section of the farm bill is disposed of.

But before this section can be acted upon, the Senate must vote on the Frazier substitute for it, a substitute proposing unrestricted issuance of federal bonds for refinancing farm debts. A vote on the Frazier substitute was set for 1 p. m. today.

REED LEADS ATTACKS

Republican attacks did not wait for formal consideration of the inflation plan, but were loosed with a vigor yesterday by Senator Reed, who asserted that it would allow expansion of the currency by $20,000,000,000. The steady Republican fire culminated last night in the statement issued by Reed, Walcott, Snell and Luce.

They said they could support only one provision of the Thomas amendment, that authorizing the Federal Reserve system to buy up to $3,000,000,000 of government bonds as a means of expanding credit. But, they added, they could support that section only in view of the "existing emergency" and felt it "contained grave objections."

The section permitting the issuance of $3,000,000,000 in new currency was denounced as "inflation on a grand scale," while the provision to empower the President to reduce the gold content of the dollar was attacked as unconstitutional, with a prediction it would prove disappointing.

If the issuance of new currency, the Republican leaders said, "does not produce the expected results, the government, having conceded the principle, will be forced to increase the dose."

Reed told the Senate the Republicans would discuss the measure at length, but he disavowed any intention of filibustering. He told Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, he saw no reason why the legislation could not be voted on by next Wednesday. This pleased Robinson, but he is ready to clamp down the cloture rule if necessary to choke off a filibuster.

Such a boost in prices, some officials pointed out elsewhere, would answer one of the chief arguments advanced for revision of the war debts on the ground that foreign nations receive only a fraction of the amount which they obtain for selling their goods at the time the debt settlements were made yet have to pay the United States an undiminished sum.

Secretary Hull has said that the matter of boosting prices is of importance particularly to the South American countries whose principal products are major export commodities, and whose incomes have been drastically reduced by the price decline of recent years.

BROAD PROGRAM

This international inflation, under the plan, would be a major item in a broad program designed to establish a revised international currency standard to eliminate fluctuation in exchanges and to include reduction of trade barriers.

The British reception to this line of thought had yet to be ascertained.

Meanwhile, the State Department notified American embassies abroad to make clear to the London, Paris, Rome and Berlin governments the American viewpoint on leaving the gold standard. The communication said:

"It is important that our recent monetary action be understood not as a step in international contest or conflict, and not as a move to get a weapon in the scheduled international conversations.

"It was a measure required by circumstances and designed to enable us in this country to work out an improvement in prices which was essential."

Concrete decisions are expected to take shape tomorrow when the President and his guest will seek even more complete seclusion than is possible here, stealing away aboard the Department of Commerce boat Sequoia for a cruise down the Potomac.

GREEN SCRAPS STRIKE TRUCE

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(INS.)—The "peace pact" organized labor made with the federal government at the outset of the business slump was discarded today.

Claiming currency inflation and the higher prices for farm products contained in the pending farm bill will increase the burden of the working man and the millions of unemployed, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today called on his followers to fight for immediate wage increases.

Green promised former President Hoover no strikes would be sanctioned during the nation's economic plight, but today he issued this statement:

"We propose to call upon labor to begin the fight immediately for wage increases and to use such legitimate influence and power as may be at their command to bring about the restoration of the buying power of the masses of the people."

HELEN VASCO

PARENTS TAKE BABE TO CLINIC

NEW YORK, April 22.—(Universal.)—Helen Vasco's parents brought their pretty 2-year-old daughter to the medical center here yesterday for a thorough examination to determine whether her cancerous left eye must be removed to save her life, as a court has ruled.

This was the parents' first concession in the legal battle revolving about Helen—a struggle that has resolved into the problem of whether state or parents shall decide the child's fate.

Motorcycle policemen escorted the automobile that bore Helen and her immigrant parents, John and Anna Vasko, from their home at Hastings-on-Hudson to the Medical Center.

For nearly two hours the child was examined by a specialist, understood to have been Dr. John H. Bunnington, an associate of Dr. John Wheeler, who performed the recent eye operation on King Prajadhipok of Siam.

MARK TIME IN SICK BOY CASE

The Humane Society and the Juvenile Court were marking time today in the case of little Billy Lesic, stricken Millvale boy.

His mother, Mrs. Mary Lesic, of 248 Arlington street, is as steadfast as ever. She said:

"I haven't changed my mind. I'm going to keep my boy at home. If he has tuberculosis of the spine, we will cure him at home."

Miss Grace Stoakes, chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court, is hoping that the boy's parents will change their minds before the case goes into the court Wednesday.

Doctors who have examined Billy say he can be cured only in a hospital. They say the 3-year-old boy is doomed to die if not given medical care.

Embezzlement Trial Ends in Acquittal

William H. Peterson, of 712 Russelwood avenue, McKees Rocks, was free today after paying half the trial costs in an embezzlement case which resulted in his acquittal before Visiting Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset County, late yesterday.

It was charged that while an employe of the Eureka Maryland Assurance Corporation he appropriated to his own use $415 belonging to the company. The prosecutor was M. M. Sullivan, manager of the company.

BOYD DECLARED TO REAP JURY FEE HARVEST

Broke Rule to Draw $671 in 3 Months, Says Auditor

Although police officers and constables are required to swear they are not collecting witness fees for more than one case in which they appeared in court on the same day, the practice of collecting many times that amount still exists, County Commissioners are informed in a report on court costs submitted by M. C. Conick, auditor.

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd was named in the report as having collected $671.70 during the first three months of 1931. On one occasion, the report says, Boyd drew as high as $24 in one day, collecting $3 for each of eight cases. This money was collected, the report indicates, after the inspector had taken an oath that he was not collecting fees in more than one case.

Boyd also was named as having collected for five cases each on two other occasions and on four days he collected for four cases each.

District Attorney A. T. Park said that a system installed by him and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley in February, 1932, prevent any officer from collecting more than $3 a day witness fees.

This check has resulted in a $38,000 saving, Park stated. He said he knew nothing of the Boyd case, which occurred prior to the new system.

Other officers named as having collected for more than one case on the same day in court was Lieut. Frank Ferris, North Side constable and city detective; Constable J. H. Funk of Wilkinsburg; Samuel Graham, the raiding constable of Glenfield; Constable J. C. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon; City Detective Walter Monaghan and Constable Samuel Sakulsky, of Brackenridge.

JAPANESE HALT DRIVE IN CHINA

TOKIO, April 22.—(AP.)—The war office announced today that Japanese troops have been ordered to cease their attacks on and halt their pursuit of Chinese troops south of the Great Wall of China.

The campaign south of the wall, it said, has gained all objectives—the termination of Chinese pressure on the southern boundary of Jehol province and the pushing of the Chinese beyond artillery range of the wall. The campaign began officially April 10, more than a month after the seizure of Jehol.

INSPECTION SET AT NADINE

Representatives of the Public Service Commission, the County Commissioners and other county officials will make an inspection of the Allegheny River boulevard at Nadine, which they hope to straighten by removing its "bottle neck." The inspection follows a petition of Verona taxpayers for settlement of the long dispute between the county and the public utilities.

The Legislature has enacted a bill enabling the county to condemn the necessary land.

Assistant County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher launched the condemnation proceedings yesterday by petitioning Quarter Sessions Court for the right to go before a grand jury. The county seeks to condemn land occupied by the Pennsylvania Railroad. Land would be taken from the Pennsylvania Water Company and given to the railroad.

Chinese Delegate To Conference Sails

YOKOHAMA, April 22—(AP.)—Dr. T. V. Soong, finance minister and vice chairman of the executive Yuan of the Chinese Nationalist government, sailed today for Seattle en route to Washington to represent China in President Roosevelt's economic parparleys.

THE BIRTH OF A BOY SCOUT TROOP, KIWANIS-SPONSORED

FORMER U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY JOHN D. MEYER AT THE INSTALLATION OF THE KIWAN'S CLUB'S SCOUT TROOP

Mellon Scored as 'Boss' At Town Meeting

Political office holders and their "bosses" were scored last night at a "town meeting," sponsored by various Pittsburgh civic bodies to express to Congress and the State Legislature the desire of the people on social legislation. The meeting was held in Carnegie Music Hall, North Side.

All members of the Legislature had been invited to attend and speak as it was the intent of the sponsors to present to the people both sides of the problem of social legislation. Two representatives from the Sixth District, Thomas J. Gallagher and John J. Kane, were the only ones to accept the invitation. Kane, explaining present legislative inaction, said:

"The Legislature is run from Fifth and Smithfield. Gen. Martin is the spokesman, and his boss is Andy Mellon."

Gen. Edward Martin was again under fire when Patrick T. Fagan, district president of the United Mine Workers, urged those present to join the Pennsylvania Security League.

Edward F. McKinney of the Unemployed Citizens' League announced that the organization was planning to demonstrate late this month against proposed wholesale evictions.

Other speakers were Prof. Ralph S. Boots of the University of Pittsburgh, Curtis A. Williams of the Penal Affairs Committee of Pennsylvania, Representative Thomas J. Gallagher, T. F. Montgomery of the Citizens' League and Maurice Schneirov. Sidney A. Teller was chairman.

Once Famed Clown Now Taps Walk With Cane

PASADENA, Cal., April 22.—(AP.)—A close escape from a motor car accident has led to the finding here of a man who a decade ago was known as one of the circus world's funniest clowns.

Now he taps his way along the sidewalks, a victim of blindness and his fortune lost. But Harry L. (Rube) Haskell is not discouraged. He can still laugh and he is dreaming of a comeback.

"What an acrobat I turned out to be."

His identity had been disclosed after he had narrowly escaped being run down by a car.

Once he was principal clown with Barnum and Bailey and later with the Otto Floto shows. He was a member of the Newton and Haskell vaudeville team on the Orpheum circuit and had been a comedian in musical comedies.

FULTON, N. Y., April 22.—(AP.)—Once the world's king of clowns, Horace Webb Baggs, of Fulton, is dead at 59. At the heights of his career he was the highest paid clown in the show business and was voted the most popular. Under the big top he was known as "Horace Webb." He claimed to have originated the one-man ladder act and the act in which a man is fired from the mouth of a cannon.

Baggs retired 15 years ago.

PREMIER'S DAUGHTER QUICKLY WON BY MRS. ROOSEVELT

GUEST ENJOYS HER VISIT TO DOG SHOW

Declines Horseback Ride, Waiting for Miss Perkins

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Miss Ishbel MacDonald have wasted no time getting to be friends.

Even in the solemnity of the White House, the two have reached a stage of easy familiarity which usually marks relationships of longer standing.

Although neither is effusive by nature, last evening's exchange of ideas over teacups, dinner table and during a brief visit to the Washington dog show has served to demonstrate mutual understanding. Today they were treating each other informally.

NEW TO ISHBEL

Ishbel's visit to the dog show was the British girl's first such experience. Ishbel does not own a dog, being away from her Scottish home so much that it is not possible to keep a dog there, she said. But dogs are Mrs. Roosevelt's enthusiasm, and Ishbel found herself interested in "the parade of the champions."

She laughed delightedly as the first lady awarded rosettes to the winners, expressed admiration for a gray English setter, and took particular interest in the old English sheepdog which has been presented to the White House and which was in the show.

Ishbel was frank and direct this morning in refusing to ride with the President's wife and his daughter, Anna Dall.

She had only been on a horse twice in her life, when she went to the Rapidan and rode with Mrs. Hoover on the occasion of her last trip here with her father. Members of her party teased her afterward for her courtesy in accepting an invitatoin she could not wholly enjoy.

This time she chose to rest and write letters until Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins called.

Miss Perkins is one of the American women Ishbel has been most anxious to meet, not only because she is the first woman cabinet member but because Ishbel's heart has been in the Labor movement in England. She is more interested in working conditions than in any other one topic.

THEFT SUSPECT HANGS SELF IN CELL

Uses Belt as Noose After Writing Girl Farewell Note

Several hours before he was to be arraigned in connection with the theft of $75, Donald B. Risher, 32, of 907 Fourteenth street, Munhall, hanged himself in a cell of the Mt. Lebanon Police Station last night, the Coroner's office reported.

Mr. Risher

Efforts of police and physicians to revive him with an inhalator proved futile. He used a leather belt as a noose, deputy coroners reported.

Risher was arrested Thursday night in connection with the theft of $75 from a cedar chest in the home of Mrs. Anna Reaney, 732 Roselawn avenue, Mt. Lebanon, police said. The theft was reported to have occurred while Risher was visiting Betty Hillenbrand, 21, of 1226 Paulson avenue, employes in the Reaney home.

In the cell the police found a note which they turned over to Deputy Coroner Stanley Guzenski. It read in part:

"I swear I didn't touch a cent of their money. ——— tried to frame me like he said he would. They tried to make me say things about you, but I told them only the truth, that you were a sweet, good girl. Don't forget me. Keep on loving me. Love and kisses. Your

"DON."

He ended the missive with a short, sentimental verse.

Twice married, Risher was estranged from his second wife, police learned. He met the Hillenbrand girl a year ago, she said.

Risher was a son of the late H. M. Risher, former manager of the Homestead Athletic Association. The elder Risher was credited with having "discovered" Rube Waddell, famed big league pitcher of a few years ago.

LIBBY SON GETS $2,000,000

CONCORD, N. C., April 22.—(Universal.)—Libby Holman Reynolds' tiny son is a $2,000,000 baby.

And his half-sister, Anne Cannon Reynolds II, daughter of the late Zachary Smith Reynolds by his first wife, also inherits $2,000,000 of the vast tobacco fortune.

The settlements were revealed yesterday under the terms of an agreement reached in the court action involving young Smith Reynolds' estate, a $20,000,000 share of the $100,000,000 Reynolds fortune.

Libby, the former "torch singer" of Broadway, now with her baby in Wilmington, Del., was largely responsible for the agreement, it was made known.

Fish Freed Once, Hooked Again Soon After

HARRISBURG, April 22.—(INS.)—The Rev. W. W. Garrett, Lutheran pastor of Steelton, today had a fish story that all self-respecting trout ought to be ashamed of.

The minister hooked a 15-inch brown trout in Cumberland County, and after playing with it a while, lost the fish. He cast again at the same spot and the same trout came back for more. In a few seconds it was in the minister's creel.

BOY HIT, DRIVER SEIZED IN CHASE

Albert Chickie, 19, of 1705 Howard street, was pursued more than a mile and captured after an automobile he was driving struck Thomas Puharick, 6, in front of his home, 1311 Madison avenue, last night, North Side police reported.

After the boy was hit, Cornelius Blatt, of 1300 Madison avenue, and Joseph Gornick, of 1302 Madison avenue, pursued and captured Chickie, according to the police report.

The victim was taken to Allegheny General Hospital, where it was said he suffered cuts and bruises. Chickie, lodged in the North Side Police Station on a suspicious person charge, will be arraigned in Traffic Court.

3 Mayors Serve City in Week; Beer Cause

GONVICK, Minn., April 22.—(AP.)—Beer is here—but it has been responsible for three mayors serving in one week.

Mayor David Allen resigned after refusing to sign an ordinance allowing beer sales which the Council had approved, 3 to 2.

Leslie Reimer, a councilman, was appointed Mayor pro tem—and he signed the ordinance.

Two days later Reimer resigned as acting mayor and the Council named Dr. John Stevens to complete the term.

STAMP THEFTS HOLD 2 MEN

Accused of the theft of 3,000 three-cent postage stamps from the Family Welfare Association of Allegheny County, Thomas Boulson, 18, of 602 Foreland street, was arrested by city detectives early today.

Boulson admitted the theft, which covered several weeks, and implicated Roy F. Lenig, 33, of 620 Lockhart street, who, he said, sold the stamps for him, according to detectives. Both were charged with being suspicious person.

Questioned at City Detective Bureau, Lenig, according to detectives, said he had sold 2,700 of the stamps to downtown and North Side drug and cigar stores at the bargain rate of two cents each. He said Boulson told him he had found the stamps. When taken into custody he had 300 stamps in his possession, police said. Boulson had 200, they said.

Detectives planned to continue their investigation of the thefts today and intimated that several of the merchants who purchased the stolen stamps might be prosecuted on charges of receiving stolen goods.

Boulson was employed by the Family Welfare Association as an errand boy.

FACTOR'S RUSE FREED SON

CHICAGO, April 22.—(AP.)—The strategy by which John Factor, international speculator, claims he out-guessed the kidnapers of his son, Jerome, was revealed as state's attorney's police continued their hunt for the youth's abductors today.

Young Factor, 19-year-old Northwestern University student was released, unharmed, by his captor, and returned to his home early yesterday.

Reiterating a previous statement that he did "not pay a cent" of ransom, the elder Factor said that his entire campaign to get his boy back was devoted to creating dissension among the kidnapers.

After the first ransom note was received he wrote another himself, asking for $50,000, pretended that it had been received from the abductors, and had it published in the newspapers. His idea, he said, was to trick the kidnapers into believing that one of their own number was "double-crossing" the others.

Factor also said that his next step was to enlist the services of six alleged henchmen of Al Capone, and that when the six were arrested in a hotel while examining photographs of suspected kidnapers, he was confident this news caused the kidnapers to fear possible retaliation.

WOMAN SPY'S CAPTOR DIES

CANNES, France, April 22.—(AP.)—Commandant Georges Ladoux, the captor of Mata Hari, woman spy of the World War, is dead.

The former head of the French espionage service never disclosed how he obtained the information which sent the Dutch dancer-adventuress before a firing squad, although he wrote numerous books on counter-spying.

It was known he labored many months collecting evidence against the woman.

Ladoux himself was arrested on treason charges in 1929 but was acquitted. He was accused of destroying or mislaying a document proving treasonable charges against one or more prominent French politicians.

Mata Hari, executed in 1917, was accused of giving French battle plans to the enemy and causing the arrest of leading French agents in Germany by information she obtained from men she infatuated.

RUTH MAY HEAR FATE TODAY

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 22.—(AP.)—Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona's "trunk murderess," may know late today whether she is to hang next Friday for the slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi or if she is to be committed to an insane asylum.

Only the arguments and the judge's instructions to the jury remained to be completed at the condemned woman's sanity hearing before the case is placed in the hands of the jury.

To reach a verdict that Mrs. Judd is insane the jury must find she has not sufficient intelligence to understand the nature of the proceedings against her, to understand for what she was tried, convicted and condemned, to comprehend the purpose of the punishment meted to her, nor ability to convey to the court or her counsel any facts which might tend to show her punishment to be unjuist or unlawful.

MONACA CLUB HEARING SET

The "three Toms," alleged proprietors of the Monaca Club, indicted and scheduled for early trial in Criminal Court, filed answers late yesterday in Common Pleas Court in the padlock injunction proceedings brought by the state.

They denied they were connected in any way with the operation of the club, also that they sold liquor or maintained a wildcat brewery.

A hearing has been fixed for Monday. The defendants are Thomas Coyne, brother of State Senator James J. Coyne; Thomas Dolan, East End politician, and Thomas "Goose" Goslin, South Side sportsman.

WOMAN JAILED IN FOSHAY CASE

ST. PAUL, April 22.—(AP.)—A Minneapolis housewife, mother of two children, must serve six months in county jail as result of her failure to reveal, while being examined as a juror in the Fashay mail fraud case, that she had once been an employe of the principal defendant.

She is Mrs. Genevieve Clark, and she was sentenced in Federal Court yesterday on charges of contempt of court, despite a plea by her attorney for leniency because of her children.

WOMAN DARES THUG'S THREAT

A thug seized Mrs. Rose Korn, 22, as she left her home at 401 Dinwiddie street early today.

She screamed.

"I'll kill you unless you stop."

To police Mrs. Korn said:

"I screamed all the louder."

Mrs. Korn

Mrs. Korn said the thug, a Negro, tried to pull her wedding ring from her finger and, failing, grabbed her pocketbook as her husband, William Korn, opened a second-floor window. The Negro fled.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure is centered over the upper lake region and northward and covers much the greater portion of the interior of the United States, it is causing cold weather in the lake region and northward, and below normal temperatures far southward. Lows are centered off the Atlantic coast and in the far Northwest. There is considerable cloudiness over the country this morning, but it is raining only at a few widely scattered places. At Denver it is snowing and 13 inches of snow covers the ground. The rainfall for the last 24 hours was light generally and occurred over a belt from Virginia and North Carolina westward to the Rocky Mountains. It is cooler than yesterday over the lake region and Ohio Valley states and warmer in the far Northwest.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 4.6 feet. Lock No. 2 (Dam 1), 17.1; Pittsburgh, 16.3; Dam No. 4, 16.9, No. 6, 16.3, No. 10, 17.8, and No. 12, 13.3. The dams are down. The rivers will continue to fall. About 14.7-foot stage indicated at Pittsburgh Sunday morning.

Two Get Jail Terms In Shakedown Case

Constable George Arendas and William Murray, both of Wall, today began serving two to 12 months in jail for extortion and conspiracy to indict. They had been convicted last February and asked for new trials, which were refused by Visiting Judge I. J. McKenrick.

John G. Oriss, Braddock, testified the two "shook him down" for $150 in a liquor case.

Teachers' Group Convenes at Tech

The third annual meeting of the Association of Physics Teachers of Western Pennsylvania was being held today at Carnegie Tech. Speakers scheduled were Dr. J. E. Rosenberg, Duquesne University; Dr. J. G. Moorehead, of Westminster College; Dr. E. Hutchisson, University of Pittsburgh, and W. H. Michener, of Carnegie Tech.

2 GIVEN AWARDS FOR RESCUES

Heroism of two Equitable Gas Company employes was recognized today with the award of medals and money.

For having saved the life of Elizabeth Levkulich, 9, of 104 Fourth street, McKeesport, Joseph Zavalydriga was given a life-saving medal and a check for $50. He removed the girl July 7, last year, from drowning in the Youghiogheny River.

A similar award went to James K. Finn, who resuscitated Sarah Brady, a St. Joseph's Hospital nurse, from drowning in the Allegheny River near Harmarville, July 17.

F. F. Schauer, vice president of the Equitable Gas Company, presented the awards, given by the National Safety Council.

Airport Roof Repairs Will Cost $3,000

It will cost more than $3,000 to repair the leaking roof at the County Airport administration building, Property and Supplies Director Ray Sprigle told the County Commissioners yesterday, saying the roof is only part of the building revealing defects. J. P. Tamella Company, general contractor for the $125,000 building, is in the hands of the receivers.

The Commissioners have refused to return to the bonding company approximately $2,300 being held while repairs were being made to the steps in the front of the building.

Lindsay Raps 'Gang' On Vote Reform Bill

Only a "fluke" has prevented the death of the Harris bill providing permanent registration of voters, in the opinion of Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, chairman of the Pennsylvania election laws conference, in an address before the West Plan Civic Club at Munhall. Attorney Lindsay advocating permanent registration as a means of eliminating "phantom" voting, added:

"There's a movement under way by the 'old gang' to do away with any legislation that smacks of giving independence to the voters."

Control of Sons' Fund Denied Chaplin

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—(AP.)—The Superior Court has denied Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, the right to dictate the investment of a $200,000 trust fund established for his two sons.

Judge Charles S. Crail yesterday ruled that a bank, as trustee, has the sole right to determine the investments, and that any money earned by the boys, Charles Spencer, Jr., 7, and Sydney Earl, 6, before they become of age, shall go to the trust fund.

Woman's Parked Car Looted of Clothing

Helen Weigel, of 640 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, reported to city detectives today that her handbag containing a sweater, pajamas and towels valued at $50 and a coat belonging to C. S. Schade, of Mars, Pa., had been stolen from her automobile, parked in Sixth street, near Duquesne way.

Poor Gas Periling Lindy Investigated by County

An investigation was under way at the County Airport today to determine the source of the watered gasoline which made Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh make a dead stick landing after he attempted to leave the field for Columbus. A. M. Marion, director, of Parks and Aviation, today awaited a report from a test of the gasoline taken from the tank truck which serviced the Lindbergh ship.

Director Marion was present when the ship was forced to return to glide back to the field with the engine "dead." He learned that the cause was reported as water in the gasoline. He immediately obtained a supply of the fuel from the tank truck and directed that it be tested.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern discussed the test with Director Marion, and both men were anxiously awaiting the result. Last July there were many complaints at the airport about water in the gasoline storage system. Since that time, however, the tanks have been repaired and the system pronounced one of the best in the country.

Airport Manager Hal Brazley today said he did not believe the gasoline put on the ship at Pittsburgh caused the motor trouble. He declared that the tank truck which supplied the Lindbergh ship had previously refueled two other ships and no trouble developed.

CHURCHES HERE PREPARE TO MARK PRESIDENT'S DAY

OTHER GROUPS TO PRAY FOR EXECUTIVE

Churches of nearly all denominations in the Pittsburgh district are planning to participate in the nation-wide observance of President's Day on April 30. Clergymen of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths have expressed their intention of setting aside the day to include special prayers for the Chief Executive in their services.

Governors of nearly every state in the Union, mayors of every important city, executives of civic and church groups have indorsed the plan to offer up prayers of gratitude for what the President has already accomplished and for his continued good health and good works.

COMMEND PLAN

Members of the Methodist Episcopal Ministerial Association and the Presbyterian Ministerial Association of Greater Pittsburgh have commended the plan and have passed resolutions urging all churches to observe President's Day.

Dr. P. W. Snyder, president of the Council of Churches, expressed his hearty indorsement of the day and Mrs. Mary B. Horan, who heads a group of 15,000 Catholic women in Western Pennsylvania, declared that complete co-operation might be expected from the group she represents.

Besides numerous prayer services in individual churches throughout Allegheny County, there will be a prayer broadcast over WJAS at 3:30 p. m. Five-minute prayers will be conducted by Rabbi Herman Hailperin, of the Tree of Life Congregation; the Rev. A. J. Holl, First English Lutheran Church, and the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's.

SCOUTS TO PARTICIPATE

The Allegheny County Council of Boy Scouts, West., under the direction of Scout Executive Andy T. Benson, and the Girl Scouts, headed by Mrs. Laura MacDonald, local director, are planning to participate in the observance of President's Day.

More than 100 commissioners of townships in Allegheny County have unanimously passed resolutions commending to the people a prayer observance of President's Day, which they hope will be established henceforth as an annual holiday on the national calendar.

Speaker

THE REV. PAUL E. CAMPBELL

K. C. TO MARK FIRST MASS

The Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of parish schools of the Pittsburgh Catholic diocese, will deliver an historical address at a special breakfast in the Mayfair Hotel Sunday morning, April 30.

The breakfast follows the one hundred and seventy-ninth anniversary mass to be celebrated in St. Mary of Mercy Church, Ferry street, at 8:10 a. m., sponsored by the Fort Pitt General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus.

The mass commemorates the first mass said in Pittsburgh at Fort Duquesne in 1754 by the French army chaplain at the fort.

CHURCH GROUPS REINDORSE DRY STAND

Members of the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches have adopted resolutions reaffirming indorsement of the Eighteenth Amendment. At a recent meeting in the First United Presbyterian Church, Thackeray street, the Women's Missionary Society of the Monongahela Presbytery adopted this resolution:

"We, the members of the Monongahela Presbytery Missionary Societies, appalled by the pertence of the liquor interests to destroy every vestige of temperance legislation, hereby express our united determination to maintain the Eighteenth Amendment.

"We register our abhorrence of the present lawless beer traffic in our commonwealth and hereby re-enlist in unrelenting warfare against the nefarious traffic."

The Beaver Presbytery expressed its conviction that 3.2 per cent beer is a violation of the Eighteenth Amendment, and is a habit-forming, intoxicating beverage. It condemns the use and sale of beer and calls upon church members to refrain from using it, and commends that the pastors of the churches read and publish resolutions for their congregations.

BENEFITS HERE SEEN IN SHORT WORK WEEK

Bankers' hours for laboring men today were seen by Pittsburgh's organized labor and Federal-State employment chiefs as a practical way out of the depression.

While the Central Labor Union, representing the workers' front in this section, renewed its efforts in behalf of the 30-hour week legislation now before Congress, proponents of the bill asserted that, had such a law been in force in Pittsburgh in 1929, there would have been 65,287 additional men and women employed.

H. F. Bucher, director of the Federal-State Employment Office here, joined with P. T. Fagan, president of the Central Labor Union, in indorsing the bill introduced by Senator Hugo Black, providing a five-day week and six-hour day.

LABOR'S VIEW

Fagan, announcing a concerted effort is being made by all local unions to influence Congressmen and Senators from the Pittsburgh district to support the bill, said:

"Labor believes it is the solution to the depression. Increased purchasing power for labor is needed to lift us out of this condition, and we understand that the Black bill will insure maintenance of the standard of living.

"History has proved that in every instance in which the work day has been shortened, general improvement in economic conditions has followed."

FLEXIBILITY NEEDED

Bucher said:

"The 30-hour week, applicable immediately and given a fair trial by industry, will be a benefit to both employer and employe. Some flexibility, however, must be possible, offering different hours for different industries.

"Increased demand in all industries will require more work to be done and will lessen our relief burden and unfreeze the dollar."

MANUFACTURERS OPPOSED

On the other hand, manufacturers in general frown upon the bill. They argue that it will place too heavy a handicap upon them in competition with foreign manufacturers.

However, a study of a table prepared from the 1930 United States census figures, and applying the 30-hour basis, reveals some developments that might follow with a return to pre-depression levels.

If workers of Pittsburgh had been given "bankers' hours," 65,287 more persons would have been given work, increasing weekly purchasing power $1,077,235.

Applied to the county as a whole, 167,188 new jobs would have been created, with an increased weekly buying ability of $4,413,750, according to the table.

This, labor leaders point out, would have greatly increased the demand for goods produced by manufacturers.

Pittsburgh's steel and iron industry would be most appreciably affected by the Black bill's provisions, as 20,401 men would be added to the payrolls, increasing wages by $485,744 a week.

WORK GAIN ESTIMATE

Following is a table indicating possible employment increases on the basis of the 1930 census, if the 30-hour week bill becomes law:

Industry.	No. Persons Employed in 1929.	Av. No. of Hours a Week.	No. Put to Work by new Law.	Wage.	Total Weekly Added Amount.
Electrical apparatus	4,274	48	1,709	28.80	49,219

Stone, clay and glass	3,092	48	1,855	31.20	57,876
Food and kindred products	5,678	45	2,839	20.25	57,499
Chemical and allied products	4,138	45	2,069	31.50	47,173
Lumber and allied products	2,829	48	1,697	24.00	40,728
Miscellaneous manufacturing	11,427	48	6,856	24.00	164,544
All industry in Allegheny County	278,648	48	167,188	26.40	4,413,750

ROAD WORKERS' HOURS CUT

Beginning May 1, approximately 500 employes of the county road maintenance department will be placed on a five-day week schedule, the change providing work for more than 75 additional men. On recommendation of Director Thomas O. Hasley of the Public Works Department, the County Commissioners approved the five-day week schedule yesterday.

Hasley has 500 men working eight hours and a half a day, five and one half days a week. The new schedule cuts the hours to eight and eliminates Saturday work.

B. & O. TO ADD MORE CREWS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 22.—Operations on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad here have been increased with the arrival of the first shipments of coal for transshipment to the lake terminal of the railroad at Lorain. Additional crews will be added to handle this increasing business.

P. J. Flaherty, president and general manager of the Johnson Bronze Company, announced today that operations at his plant are steadily increasing, due to an increase in orders. The plant is largely engaged in supplying bearings and parts for automobiles.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Have you saved the cipher code from yesterday? If you haven't you wont be able to complete it. Find it and cut out the cipher code, or what looked like Greek letters. Did you stumble on the solution right away? If you didn't the Cipher Editor will give you a tip that should practically solve it for you.

Well, here goes. Get yourself a lead pencil. Next, cut out the cipher code and wrap it around the pencil, making the letters meet. That should be enough of a tip. Go to it.

Watch for the answer and the final cipher Monday.

Store Employes' Dance Set Tuesday

The annual spring dance of the Oppenheim-Collins Company Employes Welfare Association will be held in the fifth floor auditorium Tuesday night. William E. Weber, president, will act as chairman, aided by Miss Catherine B. Wall, secretary and treasurer of the association.

COX BACK HOME AFTER REST

Father Cox is home today after a week of much-needed rest, and will be in his pulpit at Old St. Patrick's again tomorrow morning. Although he has been out of the hospital for something over two months, he is still under the care of physicians, and their hardest task has been to keep him from over-working.

He said this morning:

"I am feeling as well as could be expected but if I knew where to get the means to take care of all of the destitute who appeal to me every day, I'd feel like a new man. I have to depend entirely upon the voluntary donations and these are getting smaller and smaller every day, while the need for help among the poor grows greater and greater. Were it not for the assistance I am getting from the Sun-Telegraph there would be considerably more suffering among the destitute of Pittsburgh."

Father Cox gets a liberal cash commission for every subscription he obtains for the Sun-Telegraph. This cash is employed in relieving distress among the unemployed. There is a subscription blank on this page.

OHIOAN GUILTY AS WIFE KILLER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 22.—(AP.)—Cyrus H. Neff, 51, wealthy lumber dealer of Canfield, near here, was convicted late last night of second degree murder in the death of his wife, Mary.

He had pleaded that the shooting was accidental.

BABY 'SIAMESE' TWINS DIE

CLEVELAND, April 22.—(AP.)—"Siamese Twins," perfectly formed externally, were born yesterday at St. Ann's Hospital.

Dr. Gerald P. Tyler, attending physician, said the boys died within 15 minutes.

WOMAN ADMITS POISONING BOY

HAMMOND, Ind., April 22.—(INS.)—Seized for questioning in the mysterious death of 13-year-old Anthony Brabender, Mrs. Daisy Harmon, 52, admitted today, according to police, that she had fed the child poison.

Authorities said Mrs. Harmon holds three life insurance policies on Anthony amounting to $4,200.

In a purported statement to police after an all-night questioning, Mrs. Harmon said she fed the boy poison in his food as he lay ill in bed at her home. She said she became angered at the child's mother, Mrs. William Fox, when she threatened to take the boy out of Mrs. Harmon's care.

Authorities began an investigation of the death two years ago of Mrs. Harmon's husband, who left $2,000 in life insurance.

COAL MEN PLAN SALES PARLEY

Heads of nine coal companies here have decided to call a public meeting of Western Pennsylvania coal operators to discuss formation of a cental sales agency.

The operators, meeting yesterday at the Duquesne Club, appointed a special committee headed by E. B. Leisenring, president of the Westmoreland Coal Company, to call the general meeting in two weeks.

The proposed agency would be similar to Appalachian Coals, Inc., giant combination of producers in the Southern fields recently approved by the United States Supreme Court, when an attempt was made to test it under the anti-trust laws.

The Pittsburgh operators were in session yesterday virtually all day. The meeting was closed, but, from reports, harmony ruled and a determination to organize was apparent.

Two Arrested After 'Moonie' Raids in Hill

Ward Calloway, 47, Negro, of 2443 Wylie avenue, was arrested by Center avenue police today after a raid at 30 Summers street, where they said they found a 30-gallon still in operation. Visiting Calloway's home, the police reported they found a whisky cutting plant. Emma Coles, 29, was arrested. A small quantity of moonshine whisky was seized in both places, police said.

Baptist Young People Meet in Homestead

Two hundred delegates were to convene in the First Baptist Church, Homestead, this afternoon for the opening sessions of the annual conference of the Young Peoples' Union of the Baptist Association of Pittsburgh.

Walter Edmunds, of Homestead, was to welcome the delegates. The response was to be given by Charles Butler, of Wilkinsburg.

Striking Miners Return to Work

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 22.—(AP.)—Rev. R. C. Evans, welfare relief director, announced that 380 striking miners would return to work today at the Republic Coal Mine.

A compromise agreement grants miners' demands for changed working conditions, but offers no increase in pay, Evans said.

An Appeal to the Common Sense of Motorists!

The gasoline business is suffering from an epidemic of "Name-itis".

Fancy names and advertisements seem to be the rule. All sorts of trick names and statements are being used to insinuate that regular gasolines have premium qualities. It is an insult to your common sense to tell you that.

We believe in selling motor products for exactly what they are.

No amount of "special naming" or sales arguments can make a special motor fuel out of a regular gasoline!

This company has the resources, the organization, the willingness to give you the best value that can be offered. More than this no one can offer. No amount of ballyhoo can change the gasoline itself. That's the real answer! American Oil Company products are honestly described. To follow exaggerated claims is to court disappointment.

THE AMERICAN OIL COMPANY
Executive Offices: Baltimore, Md.

● AMOCO-GAS is a special motor fuel, selling at a premium because of its superior premium qualities. And it is well worth the premium.

● ORANGE AMERICAN GAS is a regular gasoline, and sells at regular gasoline price. It is the finest regular gasoline money can buy.

Those who moan that there's not a "different" place in Pittsburgh haven't been around to the Architectural Club in Charette way. A limited group of Pittsburgh's smart set—for the Architectural quarters are small—discovered the place last night when the Junior League sponsored the opening night of a series of entertainments in the Chauve Souris manner.

Everything was intriguing, from bathtub scene in plaster decorating the walls of one of the landings (there are many, and many stairs), to the fiercely mustached waiters—architects in disguise.

Sweatered Orchestra

And the orchestra was intriguing. The members, all architects, wore yellow sweaters flaunting a stenciled charette in front, and navy blue berets.

The waiters wore everything from Russian embroidered smocks to linen coats and the fiercest of black or red mustaches. The menu, in French, of course, was lengthy and imposing, but purely decorative. The waiters served crackers and cheese and pretzels and beer, pickles and olives at the gayly checked tables lining the walls of the architects' dining room.

The famous Trumbull mural of the Three Wise Men, gay posters, an Easter bunny mural and the like decorated the walls of the room with the brilliant blue-skyed ceiling having a galaxy of gold stars with vermillion for accent.

Architects Give Show

There was a show, of course, including all sorts of skits, put on by the architects with James Macfarlane of Stage and Play fame there to help.

There were singing waiters, too, and T. Reid Kennedy and Caroline Hunt Mahaffey were guest soloists with Mrs. Brandon Smith, wife of one of the members of the soiree charette committee, as accompanist.

Everyone was having a marvelous time. At one table were Louise Reed and Richard King Mellon, the Frank R. Dentons and the Herbert A. Mays.

Louise wore a stunning dress of heavy white rough crepe, having an Ascot tie effect in front. And she had a corsage of the loveliest orchids I've ever seen. Mrs. Denton chose red lace and Mrs. May cream tulle and heavy cream lace.

The junior W. L. Mellons were there, the Alan Magee Scaifes, who entertained a party of 12, and the James Verner Scaifes.

Mellons Attend

Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife wore orange crepe trimmed in kolinsky, and Mrs. James Verner Scaife Eleanor blue with an all-over white scroll embroidery design. And her sleeves were perky puffed affairs.

Mrs. Harry Darlington, who is back in town after a winter in England, was there, wearing ashes of roses satin, and at the same table were the Lewis A. Parks, the Henry Clay Bughmans, Elizabeth Arbuthnot, James Bovard and "Spook" McClintic.

Mrs. Park looked charming in a black chiffon gown woven to suggest diagonal tucking in the skirt. Elizabeth Arbuthnot wore heavy white lace with red for accent, and Mrs. Bughman cocoa-brown chiffon.

Striking Gowns

And I recall seeing Mrs. David C. Chaplin in white lace, Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., Mrs. George H. Love in white satin crepe, Mrs. Gilbert S. Rafferty in black with accents of scarlet, Mrs. Sherman Parker, Mrs. Stanley Brown in dull red crepe, Mrs. T. A. Armstrong in yellow crepe, Virginia Frew Wright and Bettie Dunlap in a spring-like gown of chartreuse green chiffon with the decolletage and a flounce on the skirt cut to suggest petals.

Tonight will be another Junior League night at the Pittsburgh Architectural Club. The Garden Clubs of Allegheny County will have a "night" next Friday, and there'll be many more probably. All are benefits for unemployed draftsmen.

La Salle Dorrance chose a sapphire blue crepe dress with the revers at the decolletage in back faced in white. I saw the John M. Lazears and Mrs. Ira Fitch Brainard, too.

Charles Schneider, of Aspinwall, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Bertha Evelyn Schneider, to George Simeon Baldwin, of Cleveland, which was solemnized on Saturday, April 8, in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Bruce Bowden. Only the families were in attendance.

After a short motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin will be at home in Lewistown, Pa.

Jane E. Herrick Is Married to J. B. Ingham

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Herrick, of Hillcrest place, Mt. Lebanon, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jane Elizabeth Herrick, to John Borbridge Ingham, on Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The marriage was solemnized by the Rev. G. L. Richardson, and took place before an arch of palms in the Herrick home.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin fashioned with a high neck line of Alencon lace, drop shoulder line and long, close-fitting sleeves. Her tulle veil cascaded from a cap of the tulle caught with orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of bridal roses. Miss Irene Herrick, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of jonquil yellow chiffon and carried Ophelia roses. Miss Charlotte Eckert, the bridesmaid, wore pink net over taffeta and carried pink roses. William Troop served as best man and Albert Fetzer was an usher.

There were 56 guests at the dinner and reception, with covers laid for 12 at the bride's table. After May 1, following an eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ingham will live in Ingram.

Amelia Tells D. A. R. They Should Be Willing to Bear Arms in War

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP.)—Speaking before an organization that for years has been adopting resolutions calling for armies and navies for national defense, Amelia Earhart told the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday that no organization should advocate armaments unless the members were willing to bear arms themselves.

The woman trans-Atlantic flier said equality with men was essential in everything and asserted that women should be drafted in event of war.

Miss Earhart said at present there are but 600 licensed women pilots compared to 18,000 men, exclusive of Army and Navy.

She then announced she would "touch on a point on which this organization and myself do not see eye to eye."

She continued:

"You are very much interested in the national defense through the Army and Navy. I feel that industrial development is just as important and that a great number of industrial pilots is just as potent security as we have in a large Army and Navy."

She paid high compliment to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who flew with her last night to Baltimore and back, saying that the example set by the First Lady of the Land has done more to advance aviation among women than any other factor.

Miss Earhart spoke after the organization had adopted a resolution against affiliation of the daughters with organizations. It was explained, however, that state chapters would not have to withdraw from organizations of combined groups.

Princess Cantacuzene, a granddaughter of President Grant, sought unsuccessfully to present a resolution demanding that Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the organization, explain why the D. A. R. did not take part in an anti-recognition of Russia mass meeting Tuesday night.

The Congress adjourned yesterday afternoon, and the delegates went to the White House, where Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt received her certificate of lifelong membership at large from Mrs. Magna.

Club Women Asked To Join War on Superstition

Women's clubs are being asked to join with schools throughout the country in a determined war against superstition. Under the leadership of the Institute of School Experimentation at Teachers' College, Columbia University, representative schools in various states are putting on courses in which common superstitions and unfounded beliefs are discussed and exploded.

The interest of women's clubs has been evoked by Columbia University's discovery that women are far more superstitious than men. Belief in the bad luck of broken mirrors, spilled salt, walking under ladders, 13 at a table, black cats, evil eyes, and other charms and omens, is much more prevalent among women than among men, according to Dr. Otis W. Caldwell, director of the Columbia Institute of School Experimentation. And these superstitious beliefs are transmitted to the younger generation mainly by the mothers.

With many people today superstitions have just become silly habits. About 98 per cent of all the women in this country are influenced by superstition. Even when they have been shown how foolish it is to have faith in an unfounded belief, they frequently find themselves still ruled by it to some extent.

Research work is expected to bring about a more enlightened attitude regarding superstitions, especially among young people.

Like good manners, the fallacy of superstitions must first be learned in the home.

Voters' Program For Thursday Interesting

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Especially interesting program material will be brought before the eight central committees of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters at the monthly conference in the Congress of Clubs Thursday.

The living costs committee under Mrs. W. M. Parrish will continue its study of advertising and the cost of living and a review of the book "One Hundred Million Guinea Pigs" will be given by Miss Marion Locke.

Mrs. W. B. Jones, of the Child Guidance Clinic, will address the welfare group and civil service will be the discussion subject with the city government committee, with Mrs. J. O. Miller speaking.

The educational committee will take up for discussion the proposed post-graduate school, while the war prevention committee will hear Miss Helen M. Asher, of the Y. W. C. A., talk on "The Tariff and the Gold Standard." "Wills and Testaments," the subject previously taken up by Mrs. Bessie Kann Sack, will be continued by her before the courts committee. The immigration committee will meet in League headquarters, but will join the other committees in time for luncheon at the Congress.

The Twelfth Ward League will meet on Monday, in the Lemington School, with A. L. Wills, superintendent of the Detention Home, as speaker.

On Tuesday evening the Twenty-fifth Ward League will meet in the North Side Y. M. C. A. "Taxation" is the subject to be discussed by Marry C. Workmaster, of the Bureau for Revision and Assessment of Taxes.

The Swissvale League meets on Friday afternoon in the Wilkins School, to hear Mrs. Mary B. MacDougall, of the American Citizenship League, speak on "Immigration Problems."

Betty Bruce Elected 'Y.W.' Vice President

Miss Betty Bruce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bruce, of Forest avenue, Ben Avon, has been elected vice president of the Y. W. C. A. of Hood College for next year.

Miss Bruce has been active in campus affairs during her two years at the college, and is treasurer of the Y. W. C. A. this year, manager of class volley ball team, '32, a member of Contemporary Club, Poetry Club and Phi Mu Sigma, the literary society.

She also headed representatives from Hood College at the Council of Christian Associations meeting at Johns Hopkins University on April 8.

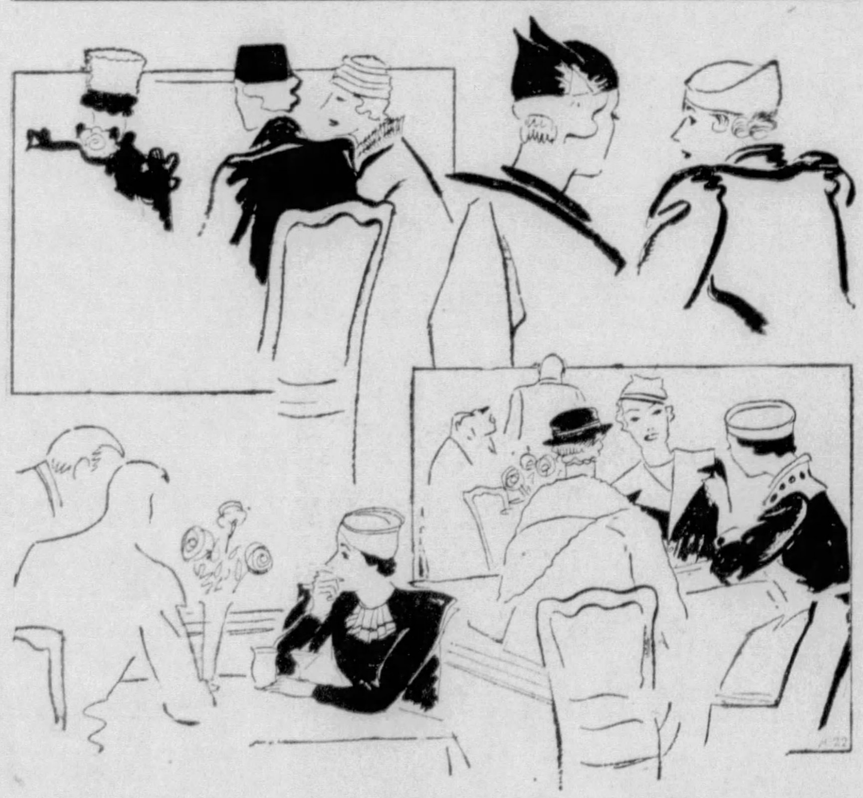
Courtesy Lodge, No. 6, of the Italian Sons and Daughters of America, is holding its fourth annual cabaret dance in the Plaza Cafe tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Mary Falvo Lazaro is chairman and Dr. Bianca Lia, co-chairman.

SMART WOMEN PREFER TOUCHES OF WHITE IN THEIR COSTUMES



THE COLONY Restaurant in New York is a grand place to go to learn how the new styles are "taking." It's frequented by really smart women and at lunch time it's a buzz of gossip and every one is out in her best bib and tucker. At the moment it's a valuable check-up on the genuine success of the higher and higher hat. You'll see from these sketches how general acceptance is, in one form or another. Also the bit of white, which dressmakers have been advocating so lustily, is everywhere in evidence.

YOU'LL NOTICE it in a sharp, high double ruffle at the upper left, in a cure's jabot below, and at the lower right, buttoned in place with shiny black buttons. The hat, as often as not, is white to match these accents and a white hat does more for the complexion than any facial we've ever had. Square shoulders are unanimously approved, both for coats and dresses. Do take a look at the fluffy ruffly frock at the upper left with a single white gardenia (artificial) plastered on at the back of the neck. Flowers are sneaking in to odd spots and they certainly cheer you up. An imported hat shown recently had a wisp of veil in the front, a red gardenia nestling in the back. It is undeniably smart.

JUST TO SHOW that prosperity isn't too far around the corner, you'll notice a sketch of a very doggy black at the top, right, which rises to two peaks and is ornamented with a triangle of rhinestones, shining bright. In the majority of these hats height is concentrated at the back. This is the wise way to take your new inches. It's just as smart as high all the way round and it breaks the shock of changing your type, by giving you a good, conventional trig line around the face.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Husband Should Have Equal Rights in Home

Is friend husband entitled to an Independence Day of his own—or isn't he?

Jim is boiling to know, and to hear him tell it, it is certainly a moot question in the Wilson household.

F'rinstance, if the missis wants to entertain a bunch of the girls at a bridge fight, or throw a dinner party, then that's fine and dandy.

But if the family-meal-ticket wants to invite in a few of his friends—that's different! Then the atmosphere goes down to zero, and the dear little woman begins to make snippy remarks. All of which burns Jim up.

"Is it right?" he snorts. "I pay all the bills, and promptly. I buy her whatever she needs, without any squawks, and then she goes around talking about 'my' furniture and 'my' house, as if I didn't have any place there at all!"

Ever see a dame like that? Or maybe you are one yourself? In either case, here's a chance to listen and learn.

WIFE PICKS GUESTS

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"May a mere man come into your column and make a few remarks? I hope so, because I have a problem that I'd like to air and ask a few questions about.

"It's all about my wife, and her attitude toward my friends. Frankly, she acts as if they didn't have any right to visit our home. In fact she doesn't seem to consider it our home, at all. I pay all the bills, and I see that she has whatever she needs, without criticizing her expenditure or making any squawk about anything that my income will afford. Yet she goes around talking about 'my home' and 'my furniture' and so on, as if I didn't have even an interest in the place.

"She likes to entertain—so long as the guests are picked out by her. But just let me want to bring home a friend of mine for dinner, or maybe have a little poker party in the evening, and you should hear her talk!

"Now, my friends are not roughnecks. They are chaps I knew before I met her, most of them. Some I met in business. Some are men who went through college with me.

QUESTIONS FAIRNESS

"But, even if they weren't the best on earth, should I have to have her 'permission' before I can bring them to the house?

"Of course I realize that my wife keeps the house and all that, and she keeps it well, too; but does that make it fair for her to think she has the sole say about who shall come into it? Whose house is it, anyway?

"I think it should be for the use of both of us, not just her, or just me. What do you think? Some of the other men I know have the same proposition to contend with. Personally, I am getting mighty tired of it. Do you think she is being fair? I don't. But what can I do about it? "JAMES WILSON."

Is it fair? Of course it isn't, brother.

That house is your house, as well as hers, and you have just as good a right to extend its hospitality as she has.

If she weren't so selfish, she would realize that. And if you weren't so spineless, you'd make her.

For that's really the cause of all your trouble, Big Boy—your own spinelessness. If you don't stick up for your rights in this world, you won't have any rights, and you don't deserve to have any. That applies to relationships in the home as well as in the working world.

The mere fact that you have married doesn't make it incumbent upon you to park your brains and your backbone outside the front door. It's up to you to proclaim and protect your prerogatives in the domestic circle.

OWN FAULT

You wouldn't let another man impose on you as your wife is doing. You'd tell your business partner where to get off mighty quick, if he started any such shenanigans. But because the little wife is a woman, you let her walk on you. And why? Because it flatters your vanity to think that you are stronger than she is.

And then, when you find that flattered vanity is costing you your liberty and your self-respect, you come bleating to me about it, and expect a lot of sympathy!

You won't get it!

If you want to be treated like a free and independent human being, act like one. Stop behaving like a worm, and they'll stop using you for fish bait.

That doesn't, of course, mean that you should disregard decent consideration for your wife, and her job. She plans ahead for the guests she invites, and she has a right to demand time in which to plan for the guests you invite.

It's pretty embarrassing, sometimes, for a woman who is proud of her housekeeping to have unexpected guests to feed, especially when she's having one of those "pick-up" meals; but if you give her fair warning, then you have as much right to invite your friends as she has to invite hers, regardless of whether she likes your friends or not.

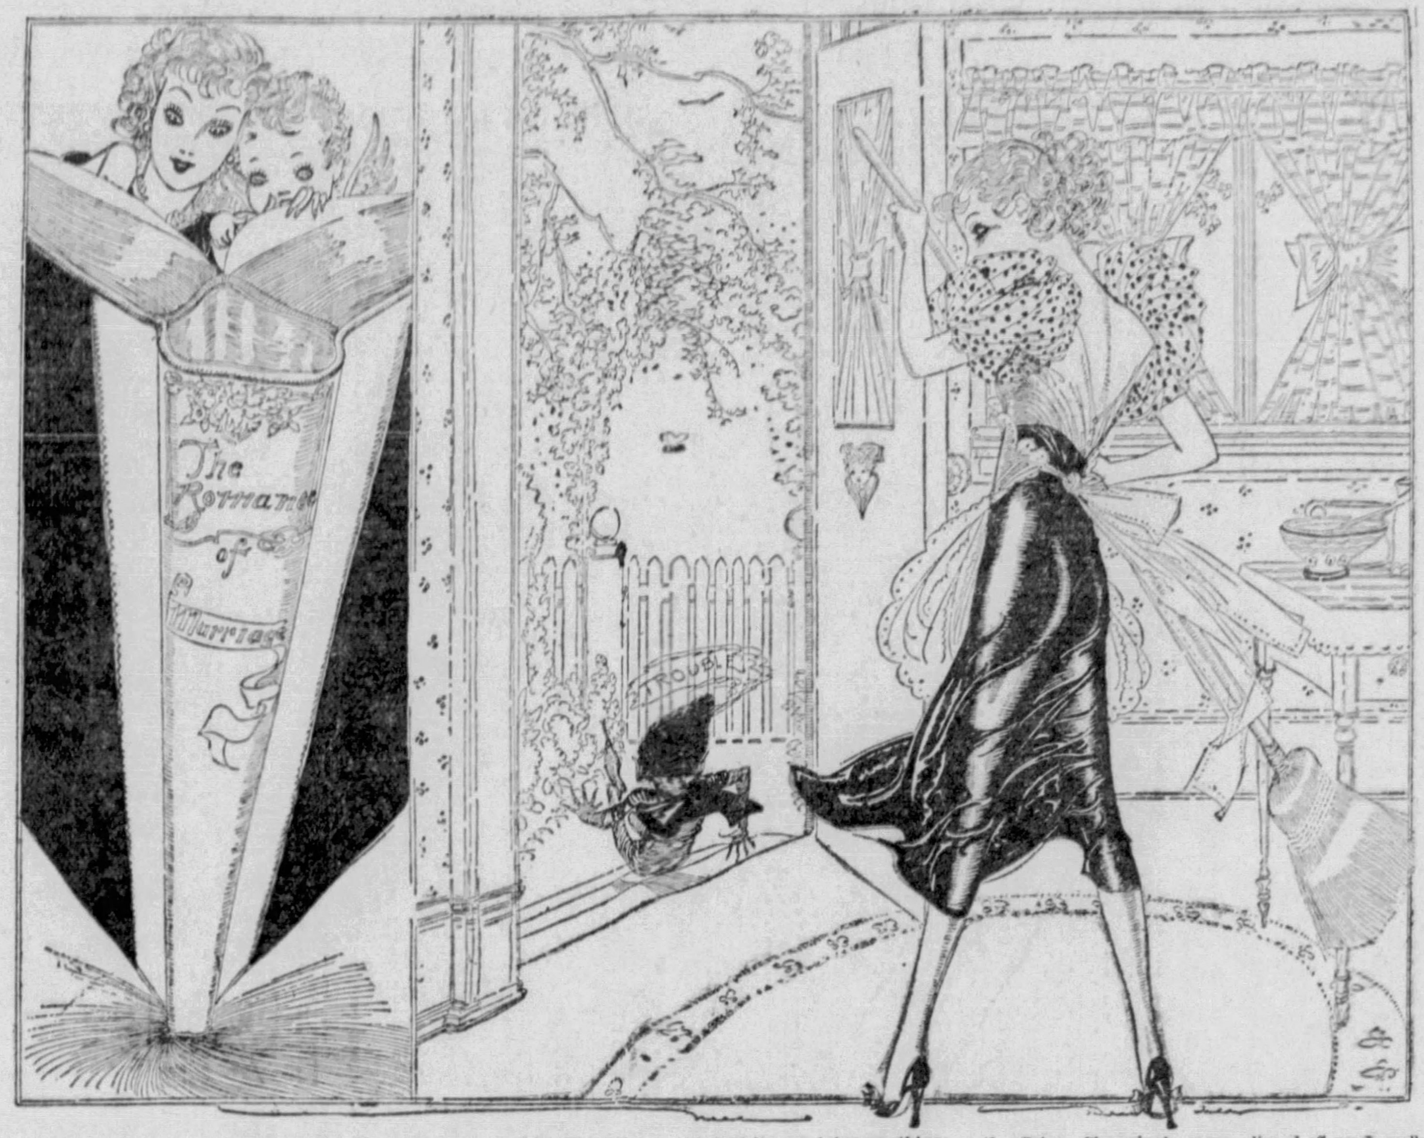
'BRIDE AND BROOM' -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley



Gloriette talks to herself when she taps her broom hard on the steps after sweeping just another Trouble out of the house, and goes back to her table and the dear little new blue and white bowls and pitchers and the concoction she is cooking up there. (Cookin' up something—but nobody but the bridegroom will know what it is when it is done.) And her murmur goes something like this. But first—can you see her?—bright hair, puckered brow, a stiff-starched little apron that crackles like wrapping paper when she walks, puffed sleeves—because George likes the new sleeves—tasting this and that on the end of a new spoon, wiping pink fingers on her front, a thick sifting of flour on her nose and lashes.

"I never knew—that there was so much to being married. I read all about it in the Book, with Cupid, and it never said a word about it ever being anything but a lovely fairy-story. Not a word about Trouble—lots of troubles! It never said you would have to be sweeping them out of the house like a plague. It never told that one had to learn how to buy meat—or George couldn't chew it even with his big white teeth. It never said anything about a Depression coming along, and making me the Conservator of this business. It never said anything about rice puffing up so tremendously when you cooked it. It never said that money was so obstinate about stretching, and that bridegrooms expected brides to long out a dollar bill clear around the block and back again. Not a word about George forgetting to kiss me SOME of the time, and actually finding fault with me! It never said anywhere that George had headaches. I never knew that the Prince Charming's crown slipped off and really bounced on the floor sometimes. I never knew piecrust was so hard to make—the book never said. It never said that I could look at George when I was tired and almost wish I didn't have him! Almost. And I'll bet you that when we have a Junior—I've just thought of it, and I'm growing very clever looking around at other Georges and Gloriettes and their Juniors—I'll bet you, that he has the measles and the mumps and whooping-cough! I read once that Trouble had been shut up in a hollow tree, and some foolish tender-hearted person came along and let him out. I knew he was out—but I didn't know he bothered with a bride.

"——, but just the same—I wouldn't be single again!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Accepting Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—At one time the correct way to decline or accept an invitation to a tea or wedding was to write "acceptance" or "I am sorry to have to decline" in the upper left corner of one's visiting card. Is it still the correct way to accept or decline?

Due to several deaths in my family it has been years since I have been able to keep in touch with social affairs.

2—Are visiting cards still used or are they now "passe" like so many other things in this changing world? D.

1—Although this form of writing a word or phrase of acceptance or regret on one's visiting-card may have been used by some people . . . it still is, alas! . . . it has never been correct.

An invitation written on a visiting-card, if it needs acknowledgement, should be acknowledged with a formal note of acceptance or regret . . . that is, a note written in the third person.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson
Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parents)'s kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of May, at five o'clock

2—Yes, visiting-cards are very much used nowadays, although of course not so much as when social life was more formal, and more formal calls were made. But they are so necessary when they ARE necessary that one doesn't want to be without them. Then, too, they are used to enclose in gifts, to leave when we are making calls, to leave at a home when we are making a visit of condolence, and so forth.

Correct Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column in the paper is the most instructive item in the paper. I've learned so much about what not to do that I am asking you what to do.

1—If I am invited to a bridge-shower, the bride-to-be and I being only barely acquainted, is it necessary to take an expensive gift? The rest of the crowd may give more than I care to (or can afford to give to a casual acquaintance) as they are all on intimate terms with her.

2—If I were asked to fill in, a day or two before, to make the tables even for bridge (being a good friend of the hostess) and such fact was kindly mentioned by the hostess, would an inexpensive gift to the guest of honor (bridge and shower) be sufficient and in good taste?

GRACE.

1—It isn't a bit necessary for you to take an expensive gift to a shower when you do not know the bride-to-be well. As a matter of fact, it isn't ever necessary for a guest at a shower to take an important gift. If she is invited to a shower and attends, it is taken for granted that she will bring a gift, but this gift needn't be expensive.

2—Yes, this would be in perfect taste.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Ronald Start Along Mountain Trail

It was no last-second impulse that urged my announcement to Ronald that I was going with him in the quest of Marion, whom Charles Owen had carried off on horseback from the shack where she and Carolyn had been imprisoned. The resolution had been forming ever since Ronald's wild dash into the tree-circled glade with his news of Marion's abduction.

After all, I told myself, now that I had broken my pledge to Dicky and come upon this enterprise, I might as well follow it to the end, and perhaps be of some real use. If ever Marion needed a woman's care she would need it when she finally escaped from Owen's clutches.

FEELS JUSTIFIED

Another reason for my going I kept in the background of my mind, a bit ashamed to own it, for there was distinctly no inferiority complex about my second reason for determining to accompany Ronald. I felt that of the people left in the glade I was best fitted to aid him in dealing with Owen.

That was not so conceited a thought as it appears. Deep in my heart I knew that I had far more experience of dealing with people like Owen—an experience dearly bought by my work in the secret service with Lillian during the World War—than had Ronald, Noel or Mary, of the generation present in the woodland glade. And while I was fully aware of Philip Veritzen's mental supremacy along the lines of the drama, general culture and worldly experience, I did not believe he was either active enough physically or experienced enough in the wiles of people like Charles Owen to cope with him successfully.

This left only my father, who, of course, was the one man above all others to deal with Owen, but I knew that his age and infirmity would not permit him to make a chase down the mountainside after a mounted horseman, which was the prospect before us.

So it was that I felt justified in my announcement to Ronald, and when the boy gave a little gasp of surprise and relief, and said: "Oh, Aunt Madge! That will be wonderful!" I caught hold of his arm joyfully, while around my heart there spread a warm little feeling that helped me to bear, or even to forget for the time being, the terror for Dickey and the grief at his cold, bitter farewell which were haunting me.

"Margaret!"

START AFTER OWEN

My father called after me in so mournful and yet imperative a tone that I halted and ran back to him.

"Forgive me, Father!" I pleaded. "I know that I cannot go with Ronald without your permission, but, please, please, let me go!"

He struggled palpably with himself, and then clasping me convulsively in his arms kissed me tenderly, solemnly, as if he were bidding me a long farewell.

"I dare not keep you, my darling," he whispered, "although it tears my heart out to let you go on so dangerous a mission. But it is your right, so go quickly!"

His clasp tightened as he gave me another tender kiss and then released me. I waited only to kiss him in return before speeding back to Ronald and catching the boy's hand in mine.

"We must make up for lost time now, Ronald," I said. "Let us run while we can. We'll have to go slow soon enough."

"All right." The boy's utterance of the simple syllables was choky, and I guessed that he could not have said many more words. But he held my hand in so tight a clasp that I winced with pain, and the pace at which he rushed me out of the tree-circled glade and up the path left me breathless. It was not until we had reached the junction of the trails which Brown had described that he spoke again.

"Listen," he said tensely. "Don't you hear a horse walking?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Hang Nail a Seat of Infection

"Paronychia" is a harsh word. It is the medical name for an infection around the edge or root of a nail. It is commonly called a "run around." Paronychia is regarded as having come from an infection with the "staphylococcus" germ. It is frequently traced to neglect in the hygiene of the hands.

Dr. Copeland

The skin serves many purposes. Through it certain waste products are passed off from the body. This is accomplished by sweating.

The skin contains many small nerve endings. They send messages to the brain and relay warnings of heat, cold, roughness, smoothness, hardness and other sensations. Primarily the skin serves as a covering to protect the structures lying beneath it.

Germs can enter the tissues beneath the skin only when there is a tear or break in the surface. So simple a thing as a pin prick may permit the infection to take place. Often the injury is so slight as to be entirely overlooked. Amputated fingers and in some cases the loss of a hand may be traced to neglect of a minor infection of the finger.

Abrasions around the nails are daily occurrences. They are especially common if your work requires constant use of the hands. "Hang nail" is a common finger annoyance. Neglect of a hang nail or other skin abrasions permits germs to get beneath the skin and nail. These germs cause inflammation and the formation of pus.

A throbbing sensation is the first sign of infection. The finger becomes red and swollen. Sleep and rest are often impossible because of the severe pain. The nail becomes dark, raised at the edge, and extremely painful to touch.

Salves and ointments are of no value in the cure of this affliction. It can only be relieved by a small incision which permits the pus to escape. The earlier this is done, the quicker the cure of the infection.

In rare instances the skin may break and allow some of the pus to escape. This relieves the tension and the pain is greatly diminished. Unfortunately, the relief is only of short duration. Sooner or later the pus again accumulates, the nail becomes distorted and pain and discomfort are felt. When this occurs the condition is called "chronic paronychia." It requires a larger incision and takes longer to heal.

Many of the common infections and minor injuries of the hand could be avoided by proper care. Bear in mind that the pores of the skin are heavily laden with dirt and dust. This is especially true of the skin of the hands which come in contact with many objects. Repeated washing with warm water and soap is the most satisfactory cleansing method. Abrasions, lacerations, pin pricks and other injuries of the hand should receive immediate attention and the application of an antiseptic.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Is your neck suffering from collaritis, Miss Beauty Seeker? Have you noticed that the skin just below the rear hairline is irritated, rough of surface? The friction of even the softest collar will do that. There is not only discomfort to consider, but an unlovely, reddened surface that doesn't do the evening frock a bit of good. When oiling the complexion at night, slather that rear neck territory. Atop the cream place borated talcum, which has a healing effect, let remain on over night. Select a scarf of satin rather than one of silk of rough texture which in itself may kick up a mild state of dermatitis.

If the pint-sized darling is Blessed with good proportions there's no reason for her registering beauty wails. She has advantages over the show girl. Men assume a pleasant protective attitude toward the cuties, those duckies who can wear youngish clothes no matter how many birthdays have been chalked up to their credit, who are inclined to be peppier than their taller sisters. After the age of 17 there's no hope of increasing stature. But by walking tall, carrying the body beautifully, the short gal will appear to add to her inches. She, of all types cannot afford to let shoulders slump forward, chest cave in, back bend the wrong way.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Reaching a Slam and Making It

It is comparatively easy to bid a Slam. As Contract players find, it is sometimes quite another thing to make it. Often the only means available for the fulfillment of what may have been an over-ambitious contract is the forced lead play, by which one of the opponents of the Declarer is thrown into the lead, usually at the eleventh trick, and compelled to make a play that will permit the Declarer to make the remaining tricks.

An instance of careful play of such a contract occurred in the recent American Bridge League's Mixed Team-of-Four Championship event, with Miss Florence Stratford, of Cleveland, playing the South hand at a contract of six notrump.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

Against this contract West opened the Diamond 5, which South won and led the Club 9. West played the 3 and Dummy the 5. A small club was continued, West ducking, and the trick was held with Dummy's Knave. Much to Miss Stratford's disappointment, East failed to follow suit, discarding a small heart. The Ace of clubs in Dummy was now cashed and the South hand re-entered by leading a small spade to the King. Miss Stratford then took her remaining tricks, discarding the 6 and 2 of hearts from the Dummy and thus stripping the East hand of diamonds. A spade was next led and the Ace and Queen taken.

When West failed to follow suit on the third lead East was thrown in with the spade Knave and, his hand stripped of all but hearts, compelled to lead into Dummy's major tenace in that suit for the 11th and 12th tricks. The 13th and Slam trick was accounted for by the good spade in Dummy. It is, of course, self-evident that any other method of play than this would have resulted in the defeat of the contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South calls one spade and West passes. What is the correct response by North with the following holding?

♠ K1043 ♡ 52 ◇ K8 ♣ AKQ63

Answer—Three clubs—a Forcing Takeout. Although the hand contains but 3 honor-tricks, the Forcing Takeout is justified by the strong club and spade holdings.

Be Human With Children

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

"I'm discouraged," admitted my friend, sinking into a chair. "I apologized to my daughter yesterday, and I suppose that's all out of court in child training."

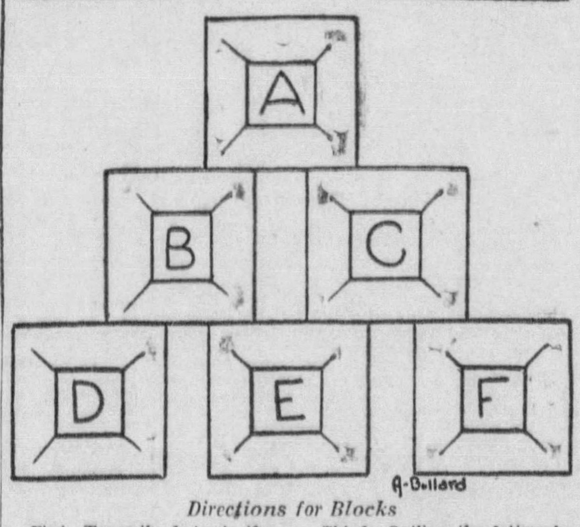
"I don't think so," I replied. "Not if you had done something which needed an apology. It takes a person who is big mentally and spiritually to ask a child's pardon, because we know we don't have to."

After a thoughtful silence the mother went on to explain. "I came home from the office dead tired. I had had a perfectly frantic day. And there in the living room were five of Gay's friends giggling and singing and Gay was serving them cakes and tea.

"It didn't help matters that the cakes were the only dessert I had available for our dinner. I blew up—told them to be quiet, and one by one they slipped out and went home and Gay faced me in tears. I had disgraced her. She was angry and humiliated, and all of a sudden I forgot my own hectic affairs and saw how I would feel in her place. I had been unfair. I had acted from a selfish motive never considering the fact that I had often encouraged her to invite her young friends in for tea, and that my irritable remarks had humiliated her before her friends. I said, 'Gay, I'm tired, I'm all unstrung, and I've acted this way because of things that have happened in the office today, which is grossly unfair to you. I apologize. I shall apologize to your friends'."

Do you think that mother lost any of her daughter's respect by treating her as she would treat an older human being? I don't. I wish more mothers would apologize when they let off steam on the children for something the children have in no way caused.

Toy Quilt -:- Made of Bias Tape and Applique



Directions for Blocks

Second—Cut a length of bias tape, of the color desired for each block, and stitch in place according to the pattern.

Clip and save the pattern and directions.

Household Hints

A pinch of salt added to boiling coffee will give it a delicious flavor.

Place your breaded meat balls in the ice box for a few hours before cooking and they will retain the crumbs much better.

To clean lizard-skin shoes, take a piece of clean flannel, sprinkle this with peroxide of hydrogen, and rub over the shoes after all dust and dirt has been removed. Leave them to dry in the open air, then rub with an old silk handkerchief or soft duster.

Jam for spreading on sponge cakes should always be warmed so that it is ready when the cake is taken out of the oven. If the jam is thick, a little hot water should be added and well mixed with the jam so that it is of an easy consistency for spreading. If cold jam is put on to light, warm sponge cakes it is likely to spoil the sponge.

When woolen socks and stockings get beyond repair, do not throw them away. Wash them out and, when dry, cut off the feet, draw one leg over the other, and then fold over and tack down the sides to make a bag like a washing glove into which you can slip your hand easily. These make splendid polishers when rubbing up furniture or cleaning shoes. Another plan is to split open the legs and tack several together for floor-rags and rubbers.

STOCKS BRACE AFTER EARLY DOWNTURN

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP.)—The stock market overcame an early moderate reaction in the early trading today, and, as trading progress, demand increased for mining and rail shares, sending those groups up for net gains of 1 to more than 2 points. Other miscellaneous groups firmed.

American Telephone wiped out an early loss of nearly 2 points to score a net fractional gain. United States Steel firmed fractionally. Advances of 1 to about 2 points were shown in Cerro de Pasco, Nickel, United States Smelting, Anaconda, du Pont, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Delaware and Hudson, American Sugar Refining and American Can. Utilities shares firmed fractionally.

The financial community was still engrossed with the prospects of inflation and showed chief interest in commodity stocks. The position of France as the only major power still on the gold standard attracted attention, and international banking quarters thought Paris might have to abandon gold completion to self-defense. Such a step, it was felt, might tend to support the dollar.

Speculators watched the dollar closely as a barometer of possible inflation, although foreign exchange dealings were so disorganized that quotations were largely nominal.

Foreign exchanges again advanced against the dollar in initial dealings. Sterling opened at $3.82½, up 2½, and the French franc rose 10 points to 4.20 cents.

DOLLAR SCORES FURTHER GAIN

LONDON, April 22.—(AP.)—The American dollar improved this morning on an active market.

It opened at $3.82 to the pound, compared to yesterday evening's $3.85 and advanced to $3.80½.

Later it weakened to $3.84 but closed at $3.82½.

There was considerable fluctuation of the French franc. The opening quotation was 89.87 francs to the pound, improving to 88.37 and closing at 88.93.

PARIS, April 22.—(INS.)—The American dollar displayed added strength on the Paris exchange today, opening in official dealings at 23.40 francs, dropping to 23.20 and closing at 23.25.

The British pound sterling opened at 88.85, rose to 89.20 and closed at 88.82.

STEEL OUTPUT AT PREVIOUS 1933 TOP

By B. E. V. LUTY

For a third week demand for steel has increased sharply, following two weeks of slight increase from the lowest level caused by the bank troubles.

Production of steel ingots this week has been at fully 22 per cent of capacity representing four points increase over last week and eight points increase over the low rate, in the middle and latter part of March. The highest rate reached early in the year has been fully matched.

What has occurred thus far furnishes little definite indication of what is to come in the next few weeks because the buying has been almost entirely for the quickest shipment possible. Production has followed almost instantly the receipt of the order. Thus the mills have accumulated no backlogs, while they have little means for judging how much of the recent buying represents business postponed on account of banking troubles, business accumulated and not likely to continue in the same volume.

FURTHER GAIN SEEN

The general impression, however, is that increase in tonnage will continue for several weeks, and until time for the usual summer lull. An ingot producing rate of between 25 and 30 per cent seems to be more or less in sight. Developments this week suggested the distinct possibility of buying being stimulated by fear of price advances.

The greatest increase in steel demand has come from the automobile industry, which is now producing at a rate of fully 150,000 units a month and furnishing engagement to about 5 per cent of total steel making capacity. Its proportion of total steel demand is about the usual one for this time of year.

Increase in demand outside the automobile industry has been widespread, involving nearly everything except fabricated structural steel, which has been particularly sluggish in the last few weeks. There are chances of a new and much larger government program, but this would hardly affect the steel industry for several months.

PIPE ORDERS EXPAND

There has been a marked increase in demand for standard pipe, which had been particularly sluggish, and volume is now close to the highest rate at any time last year. Movement of wire fence is distinctly heavier than a year ago, presumably on account of the back to the farm movement.

Production of rails last year is reported at 402,566 gross tons, the smallest in the record of 66 years. This year may easily show a substantial increase. Edgar Thomson is now rolling a part of the recent order placed by the Erie Railroad, together with some small tonnage for other roads.

Tin plate mills are operating at fully 50 per cent, the highest rate thus far in the year, and about five-sixths of the rate a year ago.

PRICES POINT UPWARD

Before there was even definite hints that there might be inflationary moves at Washington there was a strong desire to advance the steel products that were showing the largest losses, strips, sheets and wire products. With what has occurred in the last few days a very strong feeling has arisen on the subject and eventual price advances are definitely in prospect. More than a week ago galvanized sheets were advanced by one producer $2 a ton, and others have since followed. Strips are likely to be marked up $2 or $3 a ton next week.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP.)—Bank clearings continue somewhat restricted in amount. The total for this week at all leading cities in the United States, according to the records of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $3,301,231,000 this amount being 30.9 per cent under that of a year ago. At New York City, clearings were $2,236,463,000, a reduction of 29.1 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,064,768,000 was 34.3 per cent smaller.

Losses continue especially heavy at most of the large eastern and western points. At Pittsburgh, quite an improvement appears, the decline from a year ago being much less than that of last week. The same is true as to St. Louis, Minneapolis, and at a number of the southern cities. This week's clearings exceed those of the second week of April by $15,371,000 whereas a year ago the amount was $135,916,000 higher.

Clearings at leading centers, showing decreases as compared with those of last year, are printed herewith: also, daily bank clearings since October.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Feller Talking About Himself

Not that I'm an old Smoothie, or even one who can get sentimental when reminiscing—but the editorial in the current Billboard, certainly takes a guy back 13 years—to cellars and smelly dressing rooms—day coaches—middle-of-the-night train connections (never waste coin on berths!)—heartaches caused by theater managers—and the miseries that came when you discovered that an office boy or stenographer was the person—who was assigned to inspect your new act . . . And then turned in a sour report on you . . . All of which, of course, prepared you—for the years to come . . . It was the stiff bumps and the rebuffs and the rebukes in those times—that sharpened the wits and schooled you how to "take it" . . . Thirteen years later, in fewer words, the bumps were easier to hurdle—and they left no bruises . . . A guy finds himself fitted for the fumbles and the other disturbances that come with the seasons—if he has been socked, slammed, shoved and snubbed when he was a sissy—just out of his short pants.

Editor Hartman, still Head Man on "Billyboy," as it is affectionately known among showfolks, was the very first editor to publish my wordage . . . The legend is that my first job was on the Vaudeville News, which E. F. Albee, the chief of the B. F. Keith Theaters, promoted . . . The fact is that the Vaudeville News was the first publication to squander any coin on my misspelled and difficult-to decipher stuff . . . The Billboard had published me without wages—but with a pen-name by-line . . . And so Editor Hartman it was—who made this all possible—for which thanks . . . To Glenn Condon, the pilot of the Vaudeville News—double thanks—for his patience, tolerance and tuition from the latter part of 1920 to September, 1924.

I cannot recall any of the scenery one observes in America while hamming it for the Pantages Circuit, the Western Vaudeville chain of temples, or this and that link of small-time theaters . . . I had busied myself studying word-embroidery . . . And one morning came a letter from Hartman agreeing to accept a few hundred words now and then . . . What a shot in the arm that was! . . . Whee! I'm a newspaperman! . . . And the double thrill that came seeing the stuff in type! . . . That was 13 years ago—and the same wallop comes seeing it linotyped by the compositors today . . . When the "ticker" doesn't thrill or beat faster over the editorial room routine—that's when I'm going to take that holiday . . . But not before . . . When I was ill last year—having nothing to do made me sicker . . . Fighting Time—Fighting for the Timid—Fighting the Battles of the Obscure and Fighting the army of pirates, whether they are style-crooks or petty larcenists (who burgle tiny sums from chorus girls) is what keeps one keyed to a pitch—charged up—and alive . . . It does me, at any rate.

Most interesting to me about Hartman's editorial is that his excerpts from those first columns reveal that vital statistics ($400 income tax exemptions to you!) were handled this way: "Mr. and Mrs. Davey Jamieson were blessed with a boy!" . . . Blessed-event must have come so many years later—I cant' remember . . . He also observes that paragraphers weren't known as columnists then . . . I had called myself a column-writer—proving that I am not now getting the swelled-head—but that I have always had one.

And crusading for the other fellow—isn't a sudden change in heart, either . . . According to Hartman's resume—he discovered in those old pillars (written in cellars of creaky theaters) the following item. The preface is Mr. Hartman's, to-wit: "With all the fuss now being made among the credit-grabbing boys—as to who really started the movement to give actors financial recognition in the staging of benefits, this hoary gem from Winchell's Billboard column in the April 17, 1920, issue, should solves the enigma" . . . Then follows the excerpt, which was: "A tornado recently ruined a few cities and killed a lot of people, among them the Beverlys, two vaudeville artists. On April 6 someone ran a benefit for the stricken, and the actors were called upon to bring in the cash, just as they are always called upon. But we haven't heard when they are having a benefit for the Beverly's!" . . . That was in 1920— . . . Now in 1933—some of the actors decide to come out of their trance—and make promoters of benefits kick in with 25 per cent of the gross—for the needy professionals. It's about time.

Borros Morros, one of the Paramount Theater executives, is sorry I didn't call him first before linking him with the small-time trick played by George Hale on his dancing girls—by taking $2.50 out of each envelope—under protest . . . Hale tried to make me believe the cut was ordered by the theater. But this is what happened. The theater contracted with the dance director to pay the gals $35 a week while in New York—and $32.50 in Brooklyn . . . But Hale paid them $32.50 in N. Y. and then sliced another $2.50 over the bridge . . . Lawyer friends of some of the gals are seeking Hale with warrants for his arrest under the Labor Statutes . . . None of us, however, wants to see him arrested . . . Showing him up this way is better . . . Very amusing quip from Bobby Dolan. He says that the circus is nothing but three hours of opening acts!

L. Barrymore In Warner

By MARY SHINE

The pitiful story of a strong man, and his four children, each of whom inherits one outstanding quality of the father, without the others to make them worthwhile, is depicted on the Warner screen this week. "You're like the sweepings from the store, scraps of silk, all from the same piece, but worthless when not joined to the whole." Around that theme has been built the story "Sweepings."

Lionel Barrymore is admirably cast as the man with a dream that is realized when he goes to Chicago after the big fire, buys property and builds a store. From that store grows a huge concern. The merchant keeps the shares for his children, hoping they will interest themselves in the business. But each one is a disappointment. The years find the father growing grayer, more stooped, more fierce as his hopes in his children die, one by one. The only person besides himself who is devoted to the store is his manager, played by Gregory Ratoff.

The youngest son is finally sent from home and wanders about until he hears of his father's approaching death, and returns home. The father, with his wayward family about him, dies, looking out upon the store he built, seeing his life's work tumbling down. But the youngest son has gained qualities his father thought he lacked, and as he looks out into the metropolis and at the store he sees his father's dream, and knows that he is going to be the one to carry on.

Dietitians Meet Here May 5 and 6

Dietitians of hospitals throughout Pennsylvania will hold a two-day convention in Hotel Schenley, May 5 and 6, Miss Irene L. Willson, president of the Pennsylvania Dietetic Association and dietitian of the Homeopathic Hospital here, said today. Through an error, Miss Willson said, the date for the meeting had been reported as this week.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor of Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal. April 22.

Well, there just ain't much to write about today but gold and there ain't much gold to write about. There is one good thing about this whole economic move, a dumb man knows just as much about it as a smart one does. For I bet you there is not a man in America could tell you exactly what it will lead to. For after all a printing press can make you awful rich (foor a little while).

Will Rogers

Here is something you might have forgot. In the campaign last fall, the Republicans said if the Democrats got in, they would inflate money, and the Democrats swore they wouldn't. But who can remember a campaign promise. I don't know how I ever happened to remember that one. But let 'er go, we are all on a drunk for the time being anyhow, and the durn thing might accidentally work permanently. Yours, WILL.

Raft Refuge Of Sylvia In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Very bad people are again very virtuous in "Pick-Up," the picture at the Penn when George Raft, as a "particular" taxi driver, becomes a raft of refuge for Sylvia Sidney in a storm. Sylvia has been a badger game assistant and is in prison at the opening, and is sent forth into the cold world with just five bucks. After she has paid her fare to the big city and expended 15 cents for hash, she is caught in a regular rain storm and has to get into George Raft's taxi to keep dry. George, being a kind-hearted chap, though "particular," takes her home because she has no other home to go to. You see, her husband is still in the pen, having three years more to do.

Mr. Seibel

After Sylvia has fried George's eggs for some time, he wants to marry her, but having one husband already she declines. But she finds out she can get her marriage annulled, so she does that just as a swell society dame invites George to a week-end. How the husband comes back from the stir, how Sylvia turns him over to the dicks, how she is tried with him and his villainy is shown up by a cute trick of the lawyer—all that is in the picture—another of Vina Delmar's bad girls gone right.

Sylvia Sidney does some very demure and sympathetic acting, while George Raft with his countenance of carved hickory and his expansive torso is just the sort of taxi-driver to play hero. George does not take a shower-bath in this picture, but it's clean romance anyway.

Then there are Zazu Pitts and Thelma Todd in a comedy so funny that several ladies in the audience got hysterics, and there is Mickey Mouse in the most fantastic adventures while "Building a Building." It's hard to understand how Zazu could be so sad after the rip-roaring experience of Mickey. She should have had hysterics too—but maybe she was thinking of poor Sylvia Sidney's troubles.

PAIR TO MARRY AT FOOD SHOW

A public wedding will be a feature of the food show at Motor Square Garden tonight.

The ceremony will be held at 8:30 o'clock. A wedding ring will be presented by Max Unger.

Prize winners at the free cooking school at the food show yesterday were the Morningside Parent - Teachers' Association, which won $15, and the Ames Methodist Episcopal Church, which won $10.

Many other women's organizations have been attending the cooking school sessions.

Lots of Lectures On Dollar, But None Illustrated

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

We would like to explain this gold standard to the man in the street, but we can't catch one.

The citizen on the curbing is stuffed to the neck with technical definitions. He is going back to the old-fashioned turtle-neck sweater to protect his ears.

If a medicine is good for you it isn't necessary to read the Latin on the prescription.

So, the minute the lad on the boulevard sees an economic expert tacking his way, he leaves the immediate vicinity immediately.

Everybody has a different explanation of the currency diagnosis. We've listened to sixteen thousand authorities.

And, all we found out is the most profound lecturer on the dollar hasn't got one to illustrate the subject.

Many Ziegfeld Stars Pay Tribute to Showman

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Memories were revived when many stars of Florenz Ziegfeld's famous productions gathered in his theater here yesterday to pay tribute to him as a showman and friend.

The occasion that brought nearly 900 of [illegible] who knew him and worked with him together was reopening of the Ziegfeld Theater as a motion picture house. In honor of him it will be known as Loew's Ziegfeld.

But those stars and producers and members of Broadway's "great" came to pay their respect to the "old master." Gene Buck, an associate of Ziegfeld for 20 years, said:

"Flo Ziegfeld was touched by genius. He had imagination and taste, and was always striving for the best. Those of us here who were fortunate enough to work with him will always remember him."

Eddie Cantor paid a tribute in the same spirit.

Many stars were there to entertain also. Among those introduced by Eddie Dowling, the toastmaster, were Jimmy Durante, genius gone mad; Aunt Jemima, James Barton, Ray Dooley, Harland Dixon, Dave Stamper, Rita Gould, Gus Edwards and Eddie Miller.

Ann Harding Gets 'Ann'

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 22.—Hollywood's sudden burst of harmony is effecting the stars' orbits. The latest change in RKO's production plans is to put Ann Harding in "Ann Vickers," the Sinclair Lewis novel, which was originally intended for Irene Dunne.

Ann will begin "Ann" after "Double Harness," which is now being readied for the starting gun. It was the decision to have Irene Dunne sing which denied her the chance at "Ann Vickers" and put her to work in "Frivolous Sal." After her current role, Irene goes into the Francis Lederer picture.

Besides a story she can get her teeth into, Ann Harding will get John Cromwell as director for the Sinclair Lewis novel. Cromwell has just turned in his work on "The Silver Cord," and those whose business it is to feel about such things at the studio declare themselves excited over it.

Franchot Tone's biggest break to date comes with his assignment by M-G-M to the romantic lead in "Stranger's Return," the Phil Strong novel that has Miriam Hopkins and Lionel Barrymore in the cast. Franchot plays the country boy in the story. He's busy right now with "Night Fight" and "Lady of the Night." Seems to be working nights, if I may be permitted!

The overnight decision of Sally Eilers to go to Europe (she will sail on the same boat as Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon embark on), changes things out Fox Hills way. Joan Bennett goes into "Arizona to Broadway," playing the role Sally was to have done with James Dunn.

This is the story of a small touring road show which winds up in the bright lights. James Tinling begins work on it May 15, his first job of directing in English, following a series of Spanish versions.

South Hills Players To Stage Comedy

"Just Married," comedy by Anne Nichols, is being rehearsed by the South Hills Community Players in their Mt. Lebanon "Loft" for presentation May 10, 11, 12 and 13. Ralph Radcliffe and Carol Garrason will play the leading roles, other members of the cast to be May Smyth, Neely McCown, Ruth Allen, H. G. The Pittsburgh Male Chorus, with Lee Hess Barnes conducting, sang its final chorus of the year last night in Carnegie Music Hall.

Mr. Lissfelt

In spite of the miscellaneous character of the program, the concert was the best this chorus has sung for a long time. Throughout there was a fresher tone, more vigor, and altogether more musical security than heretofore. The music itself doubtless contributed much to the enthusiasm of the singing, and especially commendable was Brahm's "Ossian," in which the chorus wiped out all its past sins.

Melville Sweet, Earl Renner, Charles Hemma, Vincent Kroen, Warren Kinder and Burton Mustin all contributed short solo lines. Chester Sterling gave two fine English songs marred only by incessant tremolo, and Dr. J. C. Burney's fine tenor voice is worthy of better music. A male quartet contributed much to the interest toward the end of the program: indeed these men do a very amusing turn and we could hear more of them with real pleasure.

A surprise came at the last moment when Virginia Hendrick, a Pittsburgh contralto now resident of Philadelphia and student at Curtis Institute, was announced to sing a group of four songs. This charming singer has learned much in song declamation and musicianship since last heard here, and gave us Hugo Wolf's "Zur Ruh," Mozart's "Warning," which lost all its naughty inuendo in translation; Harriet Ware's "Hindu Slumber Song" and Goldman's "Song of the Sea."

Fred Lotz played accompaniments. J. FRED LISSFELT.

Unemployed to Be Pitt Show Guests

Several hundred unemployed men and their wives will be guests of the Civic Club of Allegheny County and the Pitt Cap and Gown Club at the opening performance of the latter organization's show, "All to the Point," at the Nixon Theater, Monday.

The free tickets will be distributed by Miss Isabelle P. Kennedy, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Community Council. Agencies which will be given tickets are the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, Brashear Settlement, Irene Kaufman Settlement, Munhall Neighborhood House, Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, Rankin Christian Center, Soho Community House, Woods Run Settlement and 12 branches of the Y. M. C. A.

Playground Sought For Nineteenth Ward

Petitions are being distributed by Brookline Boy Scouts in a movement to provide the Nineteenth Ward with a playground. More than 4,000 residents have upheld the project. Samuel Easton, 376 LaMarido street, is chairman of the drive.

Lindberghs On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

For the first time since the tragedy that entered their lives and shocked the world, Col. Lindbergh and "Lady Lindy" take to the air again. Pictures of intense human interest of the famous and beloved couple are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The Globe Trotter explains all about their trip.

President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, their daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, and their grandchildren, "Sistie" and "Buzzie," greet a crowd of 8,000 from the White House balcony at the annual egg rolling ceremony.

Postmaster General Farley is seen and heard making a statement in Washington in which he promises that the old rate of two cent postage will soon be restored on first-class mail.

The thirty-seventh running of the Boston Marathon from Hopkinton to the Hub City, furnishes many thrills. Leslie Pawson, of Pawtucket, R. I., covers the 26-mile course in two hours 31 minutes.

Gustaf V, the 75-year-old King of Sweden, is seen reviewing the Skaraborg troops, the oldest regiment in the country, on its three hundredth anniversary.

Lee Tracy Film Title Is Changed

"Accidents Wanted" has been substituted for "The Chaser" as the title of the Lee Tracy film now under way at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. This is an original screen story dealing with a lawyer who makes a business of capitalizing on pseudo-accidents. Jack Conway is director and Madge Evans supplies the principal feminine interest. Others in the cast include Charles Butterworth, Frank Morgan, John Miljan, Virginia Cherrill, David Landau, Greta Meyer and Herman Bing.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"All to the Point," to be presented next week in the Nixon by the Cap and Gown Club of the University of Pittsburgh, will be given at evening performances only, the opening show, Monday night, to be under the auspices of the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

The next production of the Studio Group of the "Y" Co-operative Playhouse will be Hermann Sudermann's "The Vale of Content," to be staged Monday, April 24, as its fourth play of the season. It is being directed by Herman Liveright, under the supervision of Isabelle Jones, who is director of the Studio Group.

As an illustration of pat selection, consider the case of S. Don Moll, who will have the leading role in "Design," one-act play by George M. P. Baird, of Pittsburgh, that is entered in the Drama League contest to be held next week in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Theater. The central character is an artist, and the point is that S. Don has fiddled around some with brushes and colors. As a high school student, he exhibited some of his work in local shows. Mr. Baird, himself, selected him for his part in "Design," which will be hope of the Civic Repertoire Players in the aforesaid contest, opening next Tuesday, and it is slated for the first night.

Opening today in the Enright, the screen feature is "Sailor's Luck," with James Dunn and Sally Eilers in the romantic roles, the cast including Sammy Cohen and Frank Moran as pals of Dunn and sailors in the United States Navy.

Maurice, Baby Stars In Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"A Bedtime Story," film heading the Stanley screen bill, is an amusing comedy in which the principal role is played by Baby Leroy, an infant about 1 year of age, and in which the nominal star is Maurice Chevalier. Everybody will love this "M'sieur Baby," as Chevalier calls him, and indeed they should, for without him there'd be no story, and no occasion for Chevalier to display his unruffled happy moods and carefree nonchalence as an admirer of many ladies.

He has been away on a hunting trip in Africa and when he returns to his home in Paris a pair in whose care an orphan baby has been left place it in his car, feeling that its owner must be rich and will provide for it abundantly. Instead of which Maurice is all for turning it over to the police. By the time a gendarme arrives, however, both Maurice and his valet, Edward Everett Norton, have become so infatuated by Monsieur Baby's charms that they take him to their hearts, and Chevalier sends the man of the law away.

The fun then is in their care of him in the emergency, some of it rather too slapstick, and the suspicion with which his friends regard his story, knowing his character as they do. Helen Twelvetrees becomes the kiddie's nurse, and it all terminates with the likelihood of her becoming its foster mother when it turns out that Maurice's fiancee is just as suspicious as his friends.

There are plenty of laughing places in the film, and Baby Leroy proves to be as refreshing an element in pictures as one has seen in many a day. So much so that one wonders if there will now be a "cycle" of baby films. Chevalier is his usual good-natured, smiling self. He sings three songs.

Fun, Horror In Davis

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

A slap-stick flight from a former "heavy" love interest—now chiefly interested in alimony—sums up the theme, and the name of the film in the Davis and Sheridan Square, "The Cohens and Kellys in Trouble."

In not the kind of a show it takes a delicate sense of humor to appreciate. That well known pair, George Sidney and Charlie Murray, are pretty successful in drawing the laughs when indicated. Jobyana Howland is a hefty and fearsome dame, whom the partners try to marry to a fake millionaire on board a rum boat. But things pop when she fight back. A slight heart interest emoroiders the film, but even the juvenile lead tumbles into hot water.

Lionel Atwill is the sinister and jealous husband of Kathleen Burke (the late Panther Woman) in the co-feature, "Murders in the Zoo." They manage to work up a good bit of horror between them as she finds out where her would-be lovers have disappeared one by one.

Tigers, crocodiles, snakes, and snake fangs, are the murder's fiendish weapons. They leave no trace. But when he turns the whole managerie loose to save his own skin, the jungle takes its revenge. Charlie Ruggles turns up for a laugh now and then.

PIRATES' STRONG PITCHING CONTINUES

THE VICTORY OF the Pirates in the home inaugural was all the more pleasing because it backed up the road indications of strength in the pitching department and a year of top form on the part of Pie Traynor. Those are two items without which the Bucs could not hope to make a serious bid for the pennant—effectiveness on the mound and a normal season for Traynor. Happily, the Forbes Field curtain raiser helped along the growing hopes in both directions. Bill Swift kept up the evidence of slab dependability that the club has been presenting since the race began, and Traynor followed a couple of sparkling defensive plays with a two-base smash that knocked in two runs and turned the tide of the ball game.

Pie Traynor

It is most encouraging to see some first-hand signs tending to show that the fears of Traynor's falling off a bit this year were unfounded. An off season for a star of Pie's greatness would seriously hamper the strongest of clubs. It might kill Pittsburgh's pennant chance. But unless spring form is misleading we have the comforting assurance that the Buc captain is going to be himself.

CERTAINLY TRAYNOR LOOKED as good yesterday as he ever looked. And for the season he leads the club in batting with the huge average of .455, is first in hits with 10, and first in runs knocked in with six. It means much to Pittsburgh's pennant cause, for as Traynor goes, so go the Pirates, as a general rule.

Swift's fine pitching strengthened defensive hopes. In winning his first two games Bill has allowed only one run in each contest, and in 17 innings he has yielded only six hits. Warneke, Hallahan and Beck are the only other National League pitchers who have won their first two games. Swift appears to be particularly effective against the Reds. Counting his last three games against them in 1932 he has given them only eight runs in five straight contests.

THE PLEASING UPSET of the outside dope that the Pirates lacked pitching strength continues. No club has had more consistently good hurling than the Gibsons. In all their five games not one has been poorly pitched, and the only defeat was due to fielding errors behind Steve Swetonic's excellent slabwork.

The consistent effectiveness of the Pittsburgh pitchers is shown by the fact that in the five games to date they have allowed only 11 runs and 30 hits all told, an average of less than two runs and only six hits to an engagement.

STARTING OUT ON a new season, to be, as usual, a daily spectator at the Pirates' home games, is one of baseball's greats of the past in the person of Ed Morris, star left-hand pitcher of almost half a century ago. As spry as a youngster and as youthful in spirit as he never was, Morris will be out rooting for the Pittsburgh team at every home game, just as he has been season after season since he hung up his own uniform 43 years back. A connecting link between old and modern baseball in Pittsburgh, a surviving teammate of John Tener, Billy Sunday, Jimmy Galvin, Doggy Miller and other immortals of the local diamond, Morris never has lost his keen interest in the sport, and he follows it as closely as he did when he was in the thick of the pennant fighting of the bygone.

Ed Morris

IT WAS EXACTLY 50 years ago that Morris began his great pitching career. He started with the Actives in 1883, and the following year found him starring for Columbus in the American Association, then a major league. When the Columbus players were purchased by the Pittsburgh A. A. club in 1885, Ed came here with a group that included Frank Mountain, Fred Carroll, Rudolph Kemmler, Deacon Fields, Pop Smith, Tom Brown, Billy Kuehne, John Richmond and Fred Mann.

Morris pitched for the local Association outfit in 1885 and 1886, continued on the club for three years after it entered the National League in 1887, joined the Players' League club here in 1890 and quit the game when the Brotherhood disbanded at the end of that season. He's just one of the fans now, but he holds a place in history among the brightest stars of the old days, one of the pioneers of southpaw pitching, along with Toad Ramsey and Matty Kilroy.

SOME OF THE feats of Morris are standouts in the major league pitching records. In his first four games for Columbus in 1884, his initial big league season, Ed struck out 41 men, and of the 50 games he hurled that year he lost only 12. In his second season, he won 40 out of 61 games, and in his third year he won 43 out of 61, his victories in the latter campaign including 12 shutouts.

And while he was with Columbus in 1884, Morris broke into the hall of fame by pitching a no-hit game against Pittsburgh on May 29 for a 5-to-0 victory. A front-rank star and an iron man all through his career. Some of the present-day pitchers might cast a glance at the old boy up in the grandstand when looking for some records to shoot at during their hurling days.

THE DEATH OF Bob Carey in a practice run while campaigning to retain the automobile racing championship, has recalled the daring of other noted drivers. Racing men agree that for iron nerve, none that ever steered an automobile has surpassed the late Joe Boyer. It is related that once, while driving a car with a large seat, Boyer hit a bump on the Indianapolis Speedway that sent him hurtling into the air and caused his machine to spin around three times. Boyer calmly dropped back into the seat to continue his ride and on the following day strapped himself to the seat with an aviation safety belt.

YOU MIGHT THINK that Wilbur Wood, New York boxing expert, is living in the past and reporting a fight of almost a quarter of a century ago when he writes that Leach Cross and Young Otto looked across the ring at each other at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club the other night, waiting for the bell to ring.

Packy McFarland

But the explanation is that they had no gloves on their hands. They were acting as judges. Twenty-four years ago, when these two looked at each other across the ring, they were doing the fighting, instead of judging it. Cross scored a knockout in the fifth round.

A MOST UNUSUAL fistic situation is reported from Chicago in connection with the lightweight championship bout between Tony Canzoneri and Tony Ross, to be staged there on June 22. Rival promoters are in a squabble over the match. Nate Lewis wants it for the Cub ball park. Jim Mullen wants it for the White Sox park. Each asked to be allotted June 22 for a Canzoneri-Ross match. Did that put the Illinois Commission up in the air? It did not. Evidently, Packy McFarland has lost none of the sidestepping ability of his boxing days, for under his steering the commission neatly dodged the issue and handled the problem in novel style. What did the solons do but grant both Lewis and Mullen the right to hold a Canzoneri-Ross fight on that date. As the fight cannot be held by both promoters, the award means that the one who comes up with it has the date. That shifts the whole burden to the shoulders of Sammy Goldman, Canzoneri's manager. It puts the decision up to him and leaves him in a tough spot, as he is very friendly with both Lewis and Mullen and is bound to get himself in bad with one of them.

LOCAL WOMEN'S RELAY TEAM DEFEATED

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 22.—(AP.)—Miss Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., last night won the national 220-yard free-style swimming championship by defeating Miss Eleanor Bridges, of Whitinsville, Mass., and Miss Sue Robertson, of New York, in the finals of the national women's senior A. A. U. title race at that distance. The time was 2 minutes 35 2-5 seconds.

Miss Kight also lowered the world 200-yard mark in the same race as three judges clocked her at that distance in 2 minutes 20.5 seconds, or one-tenth second lower than the record set in 1930 by Helene Madison.

In winning, Miss Kight took her second title and set her second record of the meet. Wednesday she won the 100-yard free style crown and Thursday night she broke the world's 300-meter free style record in an exhibition swim.

RELAY TEAM LOSES

The No. 1 team of the Women's Swimming Association of New York retained the title the association holds in that event by defeating the Carnegie Library club team of Homestead, Pa., and the second team entered by the association. The time was 3 minutes, 45 2-5 seconds.

Miss Katherine Rawls, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who had been looked upon as one of the favorites to win the 220-yard title, withdrew from the event to conserve her energy for the high board diving tonight.

ORANGE TEAM LEADS

ORANGE, N. J., April 22.—(AP.)—Qualifying at least one of its representatives in every event and taking part in four of the five record - breaking performances, Orange's Y. M. C. A. swimming team last night used the qualifying trials of the international Y. M. C. A. championships to set itself up as an odds-on favorite to retain its title.

The 1932 champions saved until last the most decisive triumph. In the 300-yard medley relay, the Orange trio of Chalmers, Spence and Ashley outdistances the field to set a mark of 3 minutes 8½ seconds.

The other record-smashing performances were made by Orange's 200-yard relay team of Leonard Spence, Chalmers, Ashley and Walter Spence; Leonard Spence in the 200-yard breast stroke; Walter Spence in the 10-yard free style and by Zehr in the 100-yard backstroke.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: SAM HOUSTON—The "Defender of Texas" was born in Virginia in 1793. He was, in succession, U. S. Ensign (1812), District Attorney of Nashville, Tenn., U. S. Congressman from Tennessee's Ninth District (1823 and 1825), Governor of Tennessee (1827 and 1829), a member of the Texas Congress (1839), President of the Republic of Texas (1836 and 1841), U. S. Senator from Texas 1846 to 1859), and Governor of the State of Texas (1859). This remarkable record of public service by an American statesman was further enhanced by a chieftaincy of the Cherokee Indians at an early time in his career. His stature of 6 feet 2, and his distinguished appearance marked him out as a leader among men. THE PEG LEG STEEL WORKER—Leo Ransil, who stands 6 feet 3 and weighs 240 pounds, lost his left foot in an accident at the age of 17. Despite this handicap, he has succeeded in making his way to the position of rigging foreman in charge of some of the largest bridge construction jobs in the United States. He is compelled to wear a peg leg while working, but this never deterred him from doing all the physical work required in his job, some of which is of a nature to tax the skill of the huskiest normal climber.

TECH TRACKMEN MEET P. A. A.

By JESS CARVER

The 1933 local intercollegiate track and field campaign swings into line today with the Pitt and Tech varsity squads booked for dual engagements, the Panthers in Philadelphia and the Tartans on their own sod.

The Pitt squad meets Temple University's Owls, engaging the easterners in track for the first time in history. Tech is at home to the P. A. A. team in the annual practice meet. In conjunction with the varsity engagement, the Tech Plebes will meet Turtle Creek Union High School's squad.

The Tartan squad is built around Tom Coulter, all-around Skibo athlete, who was a member of the Canadian Olympic team last year. Coulter will run in the high and low hurdles and the 100 and 220-yard dashes today. The meet will get under way at 2 o'clock.

Pitt's varsity golf team defeated the Duquesne University linksmen in the opening intercollegiate match of the season yesterday over the Oakmont course. The score was 4 to 3. The Panthers won three singles and one of the foursome engagements.

Art Sekay, of Pitt, who reached the final round of the city championships last year, defeated Francis Totten, star of the Duquesne contingent, at the nineteenth hole. Joe Totten, of the Dukes, in winning the Red and Blue's lone singles engagement, turned in the best medal score of the day, an 83, as he downed Claude McKee, 4 and 3.

The tri-state intercollegiate tennis season gets under way this afternoon with Grant Siverd's Dukes and the West Virginia University squad tangling on the Hill asphalt courts. The Bluffite-Mountaineer engagement monopolizes the inaugural bill, the scheduled fracas between Pitt and Grove City having been postponed because of weather conditions which thus far have precluded possibility of play on the Stadium clay rectangles.

U. S. CUP TEAM STARS LOSE

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 22.—(AP.)—The United States Davis Cup team received an unexpected setback from the boys who were left off the squad when Clifford Sutter, picked to play the singles against Mexico, and George Lott and John Van Ryn, the doubles combination, were eliminated in the semi-final round of the Mason and Dixon tennis championships yesterday.

Sutter, winner of the North and South title at Pinehurst fell before the powerful service of Frank X. Shields, former member of the international team, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2. Shields also figured in the downfall of Lott and Van Ryn, pairing with Lester Stoefen to defeat the veteran Davis Cuppers in five hard fought sets, 6-3, 3-6, 13-15, 6-3, 6-4.

Shield's surprise victory carried him into the finals where he will meet Gregory Mangin, national indoor titleholder and conqueror of J. Gilbert Hall in the semi-finals, 6-0, 6-4, 6-4. The pair also will oppose each other in the doubles final as Mangin teamed with Berkeley Bell to eliminate Sutter and Sidney Wood in straight sets, 8-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Buster Charles Leads In Decathlon Test

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 22.—(AP.)—While collegiate athletes from a dozen states flocked to Lawrence for the eleventh renewal of the Kansas Relays today, Wilson (Buster) Charles, former national decathlon champion and Olympic competitor, set the pace yesterday in a preliminary attraction, the first half of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. decathlon.

Charles, an Oneida Indian who was displaced as Missouri Valley champion in 1931 by James A. Bausch, Olympic champion, won four of the first five events and had a lead of 320 points over his closest challenger.

SOCCER TITLE FRAY TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—The Castle Shannon McKnights, of Pittsburgh, champions of the West, will meet the Philadelphia German-Americans, champion of the East in the final of the national amateur soccer cup here this afternoon. The kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

The McKnights are the fifth Pittsburgh club to represent the West in the final. Heidelberg gained the title round three times in 1927, 1928 and 1930, and, won in 1928 and 1930.

The season of 1931 found Gallatin carrying the burden after playing a 3-3 tie game with the Black Cats, of New Bedford, Gallatin refused to travel for the replay owing to financial difficulties, so the game was forfeited.

The McKnights, employing a typical American style of play, are favored to win over the Quaker City club.

Canzoneri Signs For Title Bout

CHICAGO, April 22.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, world lightweight champion, has signed to meet Barney Ross, 23-year-old Chicago challenger, in defense of his title with the Chicago Stadium Operating Company.

The tentative date was set for June 22, with the site of the battle Wrigley Field, the home of the Chicago Cubs.

Wid Neale Named Yale Sport Director

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., April 22.—(AP.)—W. H. Neale, football coach at Oak Hill High School, announced last night that he has been made director of intramural athletics at the Yale University.

Play begins at 3 o'clock.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The somewhat stilted newness worn off in the home opener, our first-place Pirates today looked into the future with all the confidence and smiles of a Roosevelt. The fact that the travel-weary Pittsburghers must spend much of the next three weeks on trains did not seem to dull their spirits as they laid plans to frustrate Donie Bush and the Reds this afternoon.

The Clans' of Gibson and Bush are slated to tangle in the second and final game of the series, play to begin at three o'clock. Immediately after the contest, the Buccos will head for St. Louis where they are due to take part in a dual bill with the Cardinals tomorrow. The doubleheader is one of those synthetic things which have not done baseball a bit of good.

Larry French and Eppa Rixey are slated to grace Fogarty Knoll today. The same pair of southpaws fought it out in Cincinnati in the second game of the season, French gaining the verdict, although Rixey had even more stuff on that occasion than he displayed as he took the Pirates over the sticks in several battles of last year.

OPENER PLEASES FANS

Rixey, it should be mentioned, has an honorable service record of more than 20 years in the National League. The Virginia gentleman, and this is said advisedly, came to the Phillies in June of 1912. He was in the Army during all of the 1918 season and a part of the 1919 campaign. The stuff he has shown at this stage of his career has astonished his mates and rivals.

The 13,000 lovers of baseball who saw the Buccos win, 5 to 1, in the Forbes Field inaugural yesterday went home to early dinners with a verdict that was entirely favorable to the new Pirate combination. Through seven scientific rounds, the fans saw the home favorites blanked by a fine boy named Silas Johnson, who has dropped two hard battles to the Buccos this year.

BOTTOMLEY HITS HOMER

The slab duel between Johnson and Bill Swift was one of those contests so dear to the hearts of the oldtime fan, but most of these fights are not conducive to the wild shouting that came when the Gibson gang opened up with its pineapples in the eighth.

Sunny Jim Bottomley cracked a homer into the right-field stands in the sixth with two out and none on to score a run that looked like the payball as Young Si carried the Buccos into the eighth innings. The pitching was so keen up to the eighth that the Reds owned only two hits and the Pirates three. Bottomley's sock represented the only run of the contest.

HARD LUCK, DONIE

If the Pirates sustained the same bad break felt by Donie Bush's club in the eighth round of yesterday, this writer would have been among those singing the blues. The break referred to came to the Buccos' dugout with Lloyd Waner at bat.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—I don't wish the Yankees any hard luck, but if someone kidnaped the Ruppert pitching staff for six months it would be O. K. with me.

Nick Altrock

Joe McCarthy must have slipped his fingers phoney calendars or something. Anyway, here it is only Saturday and already they are pitching in mid-season form.

I see the experts are whining hat Babe Ruth ain't as good as he used to be. The correct answer is that Babe doesn't have to be that good. There is one guy that can go off the gold standard and still be 100 cents on the dollar.

Sarah Bernhardt was still good at 60, when she had a wooden leg, and I wouldn't put it past the Bam to make history repeat itself.

MAJOR LEAGUE BATTERS GAIN ON PITCHERS

YANKS, BUCCOS AND CARDINALS SHOW POWER

Associated Press.

While the pitchers still are in control of the situation, major league batsmen are showing signs of breaking loose and creating the usual carnage of the curving department.

One round of seven games yesterday saw five teams held to five hits or fewer, but at the same time the New York Yankees opened up with a slugging carnival that produced 18 blows against the Boston Red Sox; the St. Louis Cardinals piled up a 14-hit total, and Pittsburgh's Pirates slugged out a 5-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in one big inning.

BABE HITS SECOND

The Yankee feat recalled the way they won the American League pennant and the world championship last year as Babe Ruth hoisted his second homer of the season over the scoreboard and every Yank except Pitcher Charley Ruffing got at least two hits for a 7-5 decision.

The Philadelphia Athletics were outhit by Washington, but Pitcher Merritt Cain was effective in the pinches and Connie Mack's club won a 3-1 triumph.

Chalmer (Bill) Cissell, of Cleveland did some lusty individual clouting to provide the proper backing for Oral Hildebrand's five-hit hurling and lead the Indians to a 5-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Cissell nicked Lyn Rowe for a homer, a double and a single. St. Louis Browns defeated Chicago's White Sox 4 to 3. Irving (Bump) Hadley turned back the Chicagoans with two singles.

BUCS TAKE LEAD

Pittsburgh didn't get started scoring until the eighth inning, when a pinch single by Jensen started the Bucs off on a five-run rally. Jim Bottomley hit a homer for Cincinnati's only run. The result gave the Pirates the National League lead as the Boston Braves, held to four blows, took advantage of Hal Schumacher's wildness to defeat the New York Giants, 3-1.

WOLFE TAMES TIGER WITH INFIGHTING

Sports Editor.

Beginning with the fifth round, Eddie was boss, and he wound up winning the unanimous and popular decision. No serious damage was done on either side and there were no knockdowns. The very nature of the battle militated against fireworks, for infighting, while effective, seldom is spectacular.

HOLT BEATS RAFFERTY

Phil Rafferty, New York welterweight, dropped the referee's decision to Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, in the other 10-rounder, with the judges splitting their votes between them, but the cheers of the fans went to Rafferty, while Billy left the ring amid a storm of boos. This wasn't because Billy didn't win all off by himself with his aggressive punching as against Rafferty's boxing and maneuvering and spotty hitting, but because Billy a number of times was guilty of butting with his head. The fans finally got "on" him about it and were almost unanimously against him when the final bell clanged.

Rafferty showed a good short right to the jaw to win a shade in the first round, but thereafter he won only the ninth and held his own in the eighth. His left eye was cut in the fifth.

EDDIE ZIVIC EXTENDED

Eddie Zivic was pushed unexpectedly hard to win the verdict over Johnny Durso in the main six-rounder; Elmer Wilson dropped Sharkey Lesko for the full count with two good lefts to the body in the second round and Charley Scott, Roanoke (Va.) Negro, won by a technical knockout over Jackie Ladd, of Mansfield, O., when the referee called a halt because of a cut eye in the fifth round.

Tracey Cox and Tony Herrera box the windup at the Arena next Friday night.

The baseball notables on hand as the guests of the management included Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Waner, Paul Waner, Gus Suhr, Ray Kremer, Mr. and Mrs. Heine Meine, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Piet, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Finney, Tommy Padden, Woodie Jensen, Leon Chagnon, Waite Hoyt, Larry French, Steve Swetonic, Floyd Vaughan and Bill Swift, of the Pirates, and George Grantham, Taylor Douthit and Si Johnson, of the Reds.

SCHOOL TEAMS OPEN RACES

By JULIUS LEVIN

The high school golf and baseball teams inaugurated their championship campaigns yesterday with competition among the W. P. I. A. L. diamond teams and in the Interscholastic Golf Conference.

Starting off on the right foot, the Wilkinsburg nine defeated the champion McKeesport team of the W. P. I. A. L., 3 to 1, in a pitchers' battle between Porter, of Wilkinsburg, and Ford, of McKeesport.

Turtle Creek defeated East McKeesport, 11 to 5, and Edgewood downed Elizabeth by the same score, in other league frays. In exhibition tilts, Westinghouse beat Langley, 2 to 1; Dormont nosed out Allegheny Vocational, 4 to 3; Avella took over Burgettstown, 4 to 3; Trinity beat Hickory, 14 to 1, and Carrick walloped Shady Side, 11 to 6.

In the golf conference, the champion Kiski squad routed Taylor Allderdice, 17½ to ½, while last year's Section II champs, McKeesport, defeated Springdale, 12 to 6.

Peabody beat University School, 18-0, and Connelley took over Oliver, 10-8, in other Section I matches, with Wilkinsburg beating Shady Side, 12½ to 5½, and Turtle Creek laced Brentwood, 18 to 0, in Section II.

LOCAL RIDERS FACE CRIMSON

Pittsburgh is host tonight to the recently crowned champion of Eastern intercollegiate indoor polo—Harvard. The Crimson poloists, fresh from the tourney which saw them rise to supreme heights for the third time in five years, face a severe test in clashing with the Pittsburgh Polo League All-Stars at Hunt Armory.

The Cambridge trio waged its Eastern campaign on a highly deceptive attack, coupled with a clever defensive wall. How this combination will fare against the array of talent which Coach Jimmy Milburne has mobilized to represent the local circuit furnishes fertile ground for speculation. The All-Stars defeated Yale, last year's Eastern titlists, and the Bulldogs split a double bill with Harvard.

The invaders' record for the current campaign includes six victories, four setbacks and one tie. The lineup:

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

Many people wonder how it is that fellows like Hagen, Armour, Sarazen and others I might mention, who seemingly turn in phenomenal scores day after day, fall down from time to time and score many strokes higher than their natural game.

As an example, last winter Tommy Armour played 12 or more rounds at Pinehurst on the championship course there, and his average was approximately 67.

Francis Ouimet

There was hardly a round but that he did not have marvelous scoring streaks somewhere along the line, and it just seemed that he could shut his eyes and break 70. However, in the North and South Open, instead of breaking 70 as everyone expected he would, he was far down the list and never once approached the form he showed earlier in the season. Yet, after the event was over, he played a round with one of my friends and had a reasonable putt for a 64, his final score being 65.

My friend, who is a fine golfer, tried to analyze Armour's play and see why it was that he scored so low. In going over the 18 holes, he found that he was actually on the sand putting green 14 times after a first or second shot. In other words, he failed to reach the sand on only four greens in the required number of strokes. Such uncanny golf seems almost unbelievable, particularly since the putting greens at Pinehurst are not only difficult to approach to, but they are extremely small, and it requires the greatest amount of judgment and accuracy to play to the sand and have the ball stay there.

PITCH HARD TO GAUGE

On a grass green, a star of the Armour type could pitch up boldly, and know that all he had to do was to hit the green. At Pinehurst, quite the reverse is the case. A pitched ball that lands on the sand is apt to go bounding many, many yards beyond, and the only way to approach is by the pitch and run system. Therefore, Armour's play stands out even more when one realizes how accurate he has to be to hit his ball with just enough power, and no more, to get on the sand.

My friend, who was playing a friendly match against Tommy, found that he was just missing the greens with his approaches and, therefore, in spite of a generous handicap, he was soundly whipped.

The case of Armour is typical of practically any of the star golfers. When it comes to driving and playing iron shots, there is very little to choose. They have become so accurate with their tee shots that you never see or seldom ever see a professional, or star amateur, for that matter, top a ball—if they err at all, it is due to wildness.

SHORT GAME IMPORTANT

Once in a while they may not quite come through insofar as gauging distances is concerned, but then a deadly chip will offset a missed shot. Therefore, low scoring among the big fellows comes down to two things—one is chipping and the other putting. If the chip shots are not rolling close to the hole, then the strain is placed on the putter, and, if the player is not dropping these putts, he is going to lose strokes to some other competitor who happens to be holing them.

The play of Paul Runyan, the diminutive professional, has been a feature this winter. He has won many important events and certainly must be considered one of the great young professionals in the game. Runyan's play is by no means spectacular. He is not a slashing hitter and does not get great length, but what he does do is hit his ball straight down the middle and keep it out of trouble. On the greens, he never seems to waste a shot and I would say to the average player, if he wishes to hold up his end in matches this coming year, he would do well to learn to play the short approaches and chip shots accurately because these are the two plays where matches are won and lost. A good approach or a deadly chip makes putting simple.

PIRATE GAMES ON AIR

Station WWSW today completed arrangements to broadcast the play-by-play account of the Pittsburgh-St. Louis doubleheader to be played in St. Louis tomorrow afternoon. The first game will start at 2 o'clock Pittsburgh time.

PIRATES WIN LOCAL OPENER

the inning with a single to center. Woodie was batting for Swift, for although Bill had yielded only two hits he had to step aside, a tally being the urgent need.

Manager Gibson apparently gave Lloyd Waner the office to bunt in order to get the tying run in the scoring zone. Johnson, however, had so much stuff on the ball that Lloyd failed in two bunt efforts. Had he carried out Gibby's order the clubs might have played right into the shades of evening.

DID PIE SMACK IT!

There was nothing for Fred Lindstrom to do under the circumstances but bunt and he laid down a ball to place both tallies in a fine spot. Brother Paul was promptly passed to make possible a force play at every base. Fine baseball, even if Pie Traynor is a wildcat in a clinch.

The throng pleaded with Traynor as Johnson and Rolly Hemsley went to work on Pie. The clever Pirate captain fouled off several pitches, and they put the place in an uproar when he slashed a double down the right-field marker, scoring two runs. The echoes reverberating around Schenley Park were given new impetus when Gus Suhr rattled a double off the right wall. Tony Piet's one-sacker to center scored the fifth run of the inning. Johnson was taken out on top of Suhr's hit. Larry Benton replacing him. Bill Harris clinched the Pirate victory for Swift as Bill twirled the ninth.

MANOS GAINS TITLE ROUND

ERIE, Pa., April 22.—(AP.)—Theos Manos, 42-year-old lawyer of the Keystone A. C., Pittsburgh, and Charles Mentz, 21-year-old lad from Central Y. M. C. A., Cleveland, clash today in the finals of the junior national A. A. U. handball singles tournament.

Manos advanced by a two-game victory over Ray Ruddy, of the New York A. C., 21-17 and 21-14 yesterday. Mentz earned his place by eliminating the last Erie entry, Stanley Jadlonski, 21-7 and 21-9.

Mentz and Ed Donkin will clash with Ruddy and Frank Coyle, of New York, in the doubles finals. The first two downed an Erie team, Jablonski and Martin, 21-10 and 21-5 in their first match today, then triumphed over Manos and Harry Kraeling, Jr., of Pittsburgh, in the semi-finals, 21-11, 14-21, 21-4.

BRITISH NETTERS WIN

BARCELONA, Spain, April 22.—(AP.)—England's Davis Cup team yesterday won its first two matches with Spain in the first round of the European zone of the international tennis competition. Fred Perry defeated the Spanish veteran, Enrique G. Maier, 7-5, 7-5, 6-2, and Henry W. (Bunny) Austin turned back Sindreu, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

Between Rounds

Curley Klaas, North Side heavyweight, enters the Allegheny General Hospital today for an operation on his right hand.

Danny Devlin, the Allentown boxer, who had his jaw broken in a bout with Tiger Joe Randall at the Arena two weeks ago, leaves today for his home. He will return later to redeem himself in action.

Fight Results

At Arena, North Side—Eddie (Kid) Wolfe defeated Tiger Joe Randall, 10 rounds; Billy Holt won referee's decision over Phil Rafferty, 10 rounds; Eddie Zivic defeated Johnny Durso, 6 rounds; Elmer Wilson knocked out Sharkey Lesko, 2 rounds; Charley Scott won by technical knockout over Jackie Ladd, 5 rounds.

At Chicago—Tommy Loughran defeated Isadoro Gastanaga, 10 rounds; Otto Von Porat defeated Hans Birkie, 10 rounds; Tiger Jack Fox defeated Lou Scozza, 8 rounds; Frankie O'Brien defeated Marty Sampson, 8 rounds; Nick Scalba defeated Joe Palazolla, 6 rounds.

SCHOOL DEFENSE Bainbridge Colby Opens Campaign ON AIR TONIGHT

Miss Perkins, Key Pittman Broadcast

The Joint Commission on Emergency in Education, now waging a nation-wide fight in defense of the American public school system, carries its campaign to the air via NBC networks with the inauguration of a series of 17 talks on NBC-KDKA tonight at 8 o'clock.

Bainbridge Colby, New York attorney and former Secretary of State, is the initial speaker in the series, which will feature addresses by diplomats, educators, economists, cabinet members and other national figures. Mr. Colby's topic is "Education for All the People."

The second broadcast is scheduled on the same network Monday at 12:35 p. m., with Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, discussing "A matter of Primary Importance."

Inflation Talk

"Controlled Inflation" is the topic of an address by Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, during the Columbia Public Affairs Institute on WJAS at 10:15 p. m.

Miss Frances Perkins, United States Secretary of Labor, makes her network debut as a cabinet officer when she speaks on "Financial Independence" over CBS-WJAS at 7:30 tonight. The broadcast, originally scheduled earlier in the month, was postponed due to the pressure of official business.

Boston Symphony

Jan Sibelius' one-movement Symphony No. 7, Tchaikowsky's Symphony No. 5 in E minor, and the "Rebus" ballet by the 19-year-old Russian composer, Igor Markevitch, make up the Boston Symphony Orchestra's KDKA-at-8:15 program.

Mrs. Jimmie Durante, making her debut as a soprano soloist, and a new comedy team, the Debunk Brothers—Hi-bunk and Lo-bunk, just two lost chords fit to be tied—are starred in the weekly NBC-WCAE variety show, Week-end Revue, today at 4.

The K-7 spy drama, which recently moved to the Monday 9:30 p. m. spot on NBC-WCAE, makes another move tonight—to become a regular Saturday night feature. The time and network will remain the same.

The marriage of a local couple tonight at the Food Show—one of the highspots of the 10-day Motor Square Garden exhibit—is to be broadcast by KQV at 8:30 p. m.

Grandpa, Lillian On Air Tomorrow

A WCAE schedule change brings Grandpa and Lillian, Sun-Telegraph comic-reading act, to the microphone from 12:45 to 1:15 p. m. tomorrow. Thereafter on Sundays, the program will be broadcast from 12:30 to 1 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

With the baseball season in full swing again, many Trotters have wanted to know the origin of the Pittsburgh club's nickname, "Pirates."

The name was applied to the home outfit 'way back in 1890, when John Kerr was president and Ned Hanlon was manager.

There was a Buffalo star second baseman, Louie Bierbauer, who jumped his contract to come with Pittsburgh. The resulting indignation of the fans brought forth the word "Pirate."

That was many long years ago, when Connie Mack was catching and Jimmy Galvin and Silver King were the famous pitchers. Billy Sunday, who later became world known as an evangelist, had left the team the year before.

Jane, that's a large order, asking whether the United States should recognize Russia. All I can say is:

"Maybe yes, and again no."

Mrs. McNeil, Avalon—The second bloom of the Washington cherry trees should burst forth today. The flowers will last about a week.

* * *

Just because it was raining and you know how you get sometimes—hating the world in general—I had to start something. I mean that announcement emphasizing the question propounded by Elsie Robinson:

"Should wives get up to get hubby's breakfast if otherwise they could sleep till noon?"

Several husbands complimented me. Quite a few wives said it was the right thing to do; but some of the feminine audience in unmistakable manner told me if I had any more good ideas like that to keep them to myself.

The Rillton (Pa.) Bachelors Club sent a letter signed by all 35 members protesting some remark in praise of matrimony.

White House Likes 'Gags,' Hill Finds

By AIRCASTER

Edwin C. Hill, who holds his hallowed place as chief among the air's commentators by the lyric tenor of his sweetly uttered knowledge, I had thought, could not readily be ruffled. His poise and confidence have served him well. His vulnerable point, however, was discovered at the White House.

Hill is just back from Washington after a visit with the President and Louis McHenry Howe, President Roosevelt's adviser—richer in experience by an episode which reveals that the stately dignity of the White House does not preclude a prevailing sense of humor.

Hill had quite forgotten that, while broadcasting from the scene of yesteryear's Democratic convention, he had described Howe as "a Medieval gnome." All his suavity and self-possession deserted him when, while conferring with his host, the telephone bell rang, and Howe answered it thus:

"This is the Medieval gnome speaking!"

The curious phase of the incident is that Hill thought the quotation a subtle dig, when, as a matter of fact, Howe has been identifying himself in this manner ever since the Roosevelt occupancy.

Those jolly Funnyboners have hit upon a novel method of insuring the originality of their gags. For every old gag turned in by their script writer, they fine him $20. When pay day arrived last week, they discovered the gag man owed them money.

On this basis, it is astounding to calculate how much money the ace comedians of the air might have earned last season.

Judge Rutherford Talks Tomorrow

Speaking on the topic, "The Effect of the Holy Year on Peace and Prosperity," Judge Rutherford, in person, will be heard over a coast-to-coast network of 45 stations, including WJAS, during a special broadcast tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Shields' Political Review on WCAE

Mark Shields, Sun-Telegraph political editor, discusses and analyzes the latest political happenings in Harrisburg and Washington during his weekly broadcast from WCAE studios tonight at 6.

A preview of the widely varied features of tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, feature magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, is presented on WCAE at 7 p. m.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, goes on the air today at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15 p. m., over WCAE-WJAS, and at 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. over WCAE.

UNIFIED RAIL SYSTEM URGED ON F. R.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—That there may be a last-minute change in the program of railroad co-ordination, it became known today.

Strong pressure, it was learned, is being brought to bear to persuade President Roosevelt to drop any plan of regional zoning, for the purpose of consolidating railroad activities.

There is a strong swing in sentiment among some of the administration's advisers for the advocacy of a single unified railroad system under government control.

The plan for the co-ordination of railroad operation, under the regional zone system, was referred to Secretary of Commerce Roper several weeks ago. Roper's report, it was learned, has been submitted to Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

OPPOSITION GROWS

Opposition to the proposed program of co-ordinating railroad management without, at the same time, eliminating duplication in control, followed conferences held here earlier in the week between Secretaries Roper and Woodin and economic experts who have specialized for years in the problem of the railroads.

Objections to the present plan of regional management are based on several grounds.

First, while it is admitted that there may possibly be a saving of $150,000,000 effected, it is contended that even so large a sum as that will fall far short of saving the railroads.

SPEED NECESSARY

Again it is admitted, even by those advocating the regional plan of co-ordination, that it will require months to effect. And it is the feeling that there are not months to be spent if the roads are to be saved.

In pressing for reconsideration of the railroad program, it is contended that the loss to the investors of the nation will be far less than a unified transportation system, controlled by the government, than under the present proposal to scale down the roads' capital structures.

Further conferences on the railroad problem are to be held here next week or immediately following the conclusion of the forthcoming economic parleys.

CANAL PROJECT URGED BY REED

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP.)—A recommendation that the long-discussed Beaver-Mahoning river improvement project be included in whatever public works program the admnistration decides upon has been made to Secretary Perkins, of the Labor Department, by Senator Reed.

The project calls for making the streams navigable from the junction of the Beaver and Ohio to Struthers, O., just outside Youngstown.

Maj. W. D. Styer, Pittsburgh district engineer for the War Department, just this week completed an inspection of the streams. He informed Representative Swick, of Beaver Falls, he would complete a report about June 1.

Reed also sent Miss Perkins a resolution adopted by the New Castle City Council favoring the project.

OBITUARY

Crawford Funeral.

Funeral services for Fred Crawford, 69, Pittsburgh and Columbus utility official, will be held at his home in Columbus Monday afternoon. He died suddenly Thursday night.

Mr. Crawford, vice president of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company, and vice president and director of the Lone Star Gas Corporation, and other Crawford enterprises, had been active in the utility field more than 40 years.

Besides his widow he leaves two daughters, Mrs. John Hislop, of Columbus, and Mrs. Ferris Hamilton, of Springfield, Ill., and a brother, George Crawford, of Woodland road, Pittsburgh.

Staiger Funeral.

Funeral services for Julius P. Staiger, 54, who died at his home, Nelson road, Ross Township, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Geiselhart Brothers' funeral home, 408 Cedar avenue, North Side.

He was born in old Allegheny, and was a graduate of Allegheny High School. For 23 years he had been engaged in the wholesale confectionery business.

Besides his widow he leaves three sons, William E., Julius G. and Edward M. Staiger, and a brother.

Beach Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lucy Miller Beach, who died Friday, were to be held this afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. E. Minor, of 5556 Black street.

Mrs. Miller, born in Waynesburg, lived the greater part of her life in Pittsburgh. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, North Side. For many years she was vice president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Presbytery.

Alexander Baca.

Alexander Baca, 61, died yesterday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Shaner, 20 Union street, Etna. Born in Sante Fe, N. M., he had been a resident of Etna 30 years, and was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church. He leaves two sons, George and Emanuel Baca, and two daughters, Mrs. Shaner and Miss Alice Baca.

Weather Too Fine For Jail Singers To Rehearse

The men's chorus of the County Jail is threatened with disintegration. Spring weather and court action are to blame, and the Sunday afternoon religious services may be deprived of their musical features.

The first trouble came when the court ordered the release of several men arrested in the Monaca Club raid. Two of the Oakland prisoners were excellent singers, according to other prisoners.

With the coming of spring weather, prisoners are permitted to spend one hour daily in the jail yard. Each Tuesday members of the chorus use their recess hour to rehearse musical numbers for Sunday, but the singers have given an ultimatum that if there is to be any rehearsing, it must be when it will not deprive them of their daily walk.

JUDGE FOSTER'S RITES SUNDAY

Judges of various courts will act as honorary pallbearers at the funeral of Judge D. Paulson Foster, at his home 537 Washington avenue, Carnegie, at 3 p. m. tomorrow. The funeral cortage will be escorted to Chartiers Cemetery by members of the Eighteith Division Veterans Association and the Carnegie Posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Judge Foster died at his home Thursday night after an illness of several months.

Honorary pallbearers will be President Judge Richard A. Kennedy, of County Court; Associate Judges Samuel J. McKim, Sara M. Soffel, M. A. Musmanno and Benjamin Lencher, of County Court; Supreme Court Judge James B. Drew and Judges Elder W. Marshall, James H. Gray, Thomas M. Marshall, James R. Macfarlane, George W. Moore, Sylvester J. Snee, and H. H. Rowand, of Common Pleas Court.

Active pallbearers will be John Carroll, Felix Snowden, John Dilworth, St. Clair Childs, Charles Jones and Lawrence D. Blair.

Invitation to attend the services was issued today from American Legion headquarters to all unattached ex-service men, as well as to members of World War veterans' organizations. Those attending will meet at Post No. 82, American Legion, 144 E. Main street, Carnegie, at 2 p. m. No drum or bugle corps will participate.

SNEE FUNERAL ON MONDAY

Funeral services for Harry H. Snee, 68, the brother of Judge Sylvester J. Snee, of Common Pleas Court, who was found drowned yesterday in a well on his farm in Jefferson Township, will be held at his home Monday afternoon. Interment will be in Jefferson Memorial Cemetery.

Snee had gone to the well, about a mile from his home, to examine the water and apparently fell as he attempted to replace one of the two stones covering it.

A life-long resident of Jefferson Township, he had lived on the farm 42 years.

Besides Judge Snee he leaves his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson Snee; five daughters, Mrs. Harry Pfaff, of Clairton; Mrs. Lowell C. Brown, of Overbrook, and Misses Margaret, Olive and Miriam Snee, at home; three sons, John W. Snee, of Brentwood; Harry H. Snee, Jr., and Charles E. Snee, of Clairton; a brother, Charles Snee, and three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Bedell, of McKeesport; Mrs. D. J. Blackburn, of Oakmont, and Miss Colena B. Snee, of Jefferson Township, and six grandchildren.

SEES FANTASTIC HOPE FOR LIFE ON LOST AKRON

International News Service.

BALTIMORE, April 22.—There is a faint possibility a section of the ill-fated naval airship Akron is still "free-ballooning" somewhere out of range of the steamer lanes or may have reached some distant land with many of its missing crew alive.

This fantastic suggestion was put forward today by Glenn L. Martin, veteran aeronautical expert, in an interview with International News Service.

Martin is head of the corporation bearing his name which builds bombing planes for the United States Army. He also has had wide experience in airship construction.

None of the bodies of the 60-odd missing members of the crew have been recovered despite the thorough search of the ocean vicinity where the dirigible crashed into the sea during a storm on April 4.

Diving operations on the floor of the ocean off New Jersey have failed to disclose the main hulk of the airship.

In the breaking-in-two of the naval dirigible Shenandoah, in Ohio, in 1925, most of the crew saved their lives by "free-ballooning" in a section of the disabled airship.

There was enough food and water aboard the Akron for those aboard a floating section to live for weeks.

Macon's Second Flight Likely Tomorrow

AKRON, O., April 22.—(AP.)—Uncle Sam's new giant of the air, the U. S. S. Macon, her performance pronounced by her builders "better than we could have hoped for," rested again today in the airdock where she and her predecessor, the wrecked Akron, were built.

Now a veteran of 13 hours in Northern Ohio skies, the airship that almost duplicates her lost sister ship probably will receive her second test tomorrow if weather conditions are favorable.

Her cruising radius, held to within 50 miles of Akron on the "shakedown" flight yesterday, probably will be enlarged, although Capt. Alger H. Dresel declined to outline an itinerary. Unofficially, however, it was said the Macon might head toward Detroit.

Council of Churches Launches New Drive

A nation-wide movement to Christianize the youth of America to protect it from possible Fascist and Communist politics was launched at the closing sessions of the evangelism conference of the Federal Council of Churches here yesterday.

Pittsburgh, designated as the key city in the movement, will open the campaign in the fall. An effort will be made to mobilize youths in colleges, universities and organizations. The action followed an address by the Rev. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Newark, N. J.

Judge Foster Paid Tributes in Court

County Court adjourned yesterday and today in respect to Judge D. Paulson Foster, who had been on its bench 13 years. Criminal and Common Pleas courts also were notified yesterday of Judge Foster's death and adjourned in his memory.

In Common Pleas Court Attorney Robert T. Houlden made a brief eulogy before 10 judges.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Sharlie's face clouded. She didn't want Alice Pope's job. She didn't want any job with the Collins Company, where she would be under Edna's eagle eye all day long.

She wanted a place in some office where she knew no one at all. The only adventure in sight for her these dull hard-working days was the position she would get when she left the Gerow School of Business—and a position in Edna's office would be a very tame adventure, as she very well knew.

"I think I'd rather get a position in some office where I didn't know anybody, Edna," she said slowly as the two of them walked along past the lighted colorful store windows and turned in at a little restaurant that made a specialty of sea-food. "If you get me a place in your office everybody will probably think I'm there just because I'm a relative of yours—and that would make them all dislike me, wouldn't it? I think I'd rather start out on my own."

"Well, we can settle all that when the time comes," Edna answered. "No use crossing bridges till we get to them."

But on the first of the year she came home with the news that Alice Pope was leaving at once to be married. She was so pleased about it that Sharlie tried to look pleased, too, when she broke the news at the dinner table that night.

"Sharlie finishes her business course on the fifteenth, and she can step right into this girl's place," she explained to Dodie and Mr. Dunn, beaming at them above her plate of soup. "I talked to Miss Sargent about her this afternoon, and everything is all settled."

SHARLIE UNGRATEFUL

The family knew, without being told, that Miss Sargent was the head stenographer in the offices of the Collins Company.

"Your salary will be 22 a week to start with," she said to Sharlie.

"That's just fine," Sharlie answered and did her best to look happy.

She did not feel at all happy about the position. She had looked forward all along to her first position, with a feeling of freedom and anticipation.

"Twenty-two a week is a good salary for a beginner," Edna was telling her. "And our office is a mighty fine place to work in. Fine people in it—all of them."

"Yes, indeed," murmured Sharlie, her spirits sinking lower and lower. She knew that she ought to feel grateful toward Edna. She knew that this was the time to say "Thanks" to her for sending her through business school and then finding a fine position for her.

But it was hard to say it. For she didn't feel grateful. Not the least bit. Her heart was heavy with disappointment, and the food she ate that night was bitter as gall and wormwood in her mouth.

On the third Monday in January Sharlie started her new life as a business woman.

It was a raw morning, gray and wet, with fog that seemed to drift into the Dunn's dining room and veil the lights that hung above the breakfast table.

LIPSTICK DISAPPROVED

"Better wear our rubber coats and galoshes, Sharlie," Edna advised her over the cereal and orange juice. She frowned. "And better not walk into the office with all that lipstick on, Babe. First impressions are everything, and I don't want the people down there to think that you're one of these giddy Fluffy Ruffles. I want you to look businesslike and dignified."

"I might have known she would," groaned Sharlie to herself.

The smell of the rubber garments depressed her as they started out. So did the fog and the crowded street car. Her face reflected in the mirror of the washroom at the office looked pale and unattractive to her without its usual touch of rouge and "Ruby 418" lipstick. Her white linen collar had been crushed by her coat collar, and she felt untidy and self-conscious as she followed Edna up the stairs to the main office of the Collins Company.

Edna introduced her to all of the stenographers and to three young men who were sitting at desks in a small office that opened from the main room.

Miss Sargent, the head stenographer, was red-haired and raw-boned. Good looking in a big romantic sort of way. She had worked for Mr. Collins for 16 years, and she looked 40 at least. Her slang was the slang of 20 years ago. "Swell" was her snappiest adjective, and she was always telling people to "go 'way back and sit down."

Miss Boyd, Miss Mitchell and Miss Cobb were the other stenographers. Miss Boyd and Miss Mitchell looked enough alike to be sisters. They were dark-eyed and dark-haired, and they dressed very smartly in plain black cloth dresses. Miss Cobb was little and silvery-blonde. She wore an engagement ring and let the office know that she was going to leave to be married in the spring.

"Just as soon as Mr. Collins comes back from Florida," she told Sharlie one noon when the two found themselves alone in the office. "He hired me, himself, seven years ago. And when I leave I want to hand my resignation in to him personally. . . . I wouldn't feel as if I'd been loyal to him if I left now without telling him about it."

INTERESTED IN BOSS

Sharlie thought that that was very silly, but she did not say so. She had noticed already that all of the women in the office seemed to have a deep interest in Mr. Collins. Miss Sargent looked up the Miami weather report in the newspaper every morning so that the whole office could know how much sunshine Mr. Collins was enjoying in the South.

"Wouldn't you like to see his secretary down in Miami, Miss Ballinger?" she asked Edna one morning when they had all been looking over the weather report together. "Don't you wonder what sort of girl she is."

The Collins Company had opened a branch office in Miami and Sharlie knew that every day Mr. Collins' secretary there telephoned Edna to ask her certain things or to give her certain instructions.

"Why, I imagine she's a very capable quiet sort of girl," Edna answered coolly. "She has a nice voice, and she seems to be quick and business-like. . . . Why are you so curious about her?"

Miss Sargent laughed sarcastically. "Oh, I'm not curious," she said, "but I thought you'd be." She winked at Miss Mitchell as she spoke, and Miss Mitchell laughed too.

It came as a shock to Sharlie to find out that these people in the office knew that Edna was in love with Mr. Collins, just as she herself knew it.

THINKS PLACE DULL

On the fifteenth of April Mr. Collins came back from Florida.

By that time Sharlie had made up her mind that the office of the Collins Company was the dullest place on earth. She had looked over the three young men who worked there as salesmen, and had decided that not one of them could ever interest her.

Mr. Goode, the sales manager, was married and middle-aged. Mr. Pettit was unmarried, but was engaged to a girl who met him for lunch every day. Mr. Haynes had asked Sharlie to have dinner with him one night, but she had declined his invitation.

For one thing, Edna had made her promise not to have engagements with any of the men in the office. She said it was best not to be too friendly with the people you worked with.

For another thing, Sharlie herself had no desire to go anywhere with Mr. Haynes. He was pleasant and friendly, but he was fat, and he was shorter than she was.

"The men in that office of ours are simply impossible," she had said to Edna, disgustedly, at the time of Mr. Haynes' dinner invitation. "All of them. Compared to them even Jim Barnum is as handsome as a Greek god—and heaven knows Jim is no beauty. I'll bet there isn't another office in town with as little excitement in it as ours has!"

Synopsis

Sharlie Dunn marries Eddie Wallis. The same day, Eddie is killed. Sharlie's mother, Dodie, has Sharlie do the housework, while she and her friend, Maud Hanaberry, have a gay time. Discovering that his wife entertained another man during his absence, Mr. Dunn leaves home. Dodie revels in her freedom and continues her flirtation with "Norman," whom she hopes to marry. Sharlie visits the apartment of Marjorie Milliken with Caddy Dean, whom she met at a dance. Dodie's friend, Norman, calls. Sharlie drives home with Norman. She reveals her identity as Dodie's daughter. Next day Jim Barnum confesses he loves Sharlie. Norman breaks with Dodie. Dodie becomes ill from an overdose of sleeping powder. Dodie and her husband become reconciled. Edna tells Sharlie she will try to get her a position where she works.

BOMB CALORIMETER (Chemistry)

The heat of combustion of fuel, food, etc., is measured with the instrument. In a closed, heat-insulated vessel, a steel "bomb" is submerged in water of known mass. Oxygen is admitted at O under about 20 atm. pressure, and an electrically heated fuse-wire ignites the materials of known weight in pot A. The rise in temperature of the water (kept equal by stirrer S), given by thermometer T, will indicate the caloric value of the burned material. (Foster: Elements of Chemistry.)

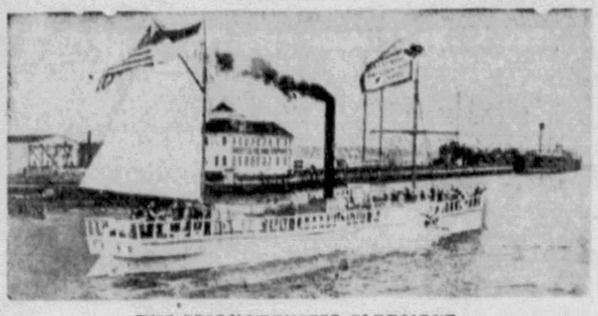
ROBERT FULTON'S DESIGN FOR A STEAMBOAT

He submitted it to a commission appointed by Napoleon Bonaparte in 1803, which counseled against its adoption. (Science.)



THE RECONSTRUCTED CLERMONT

In May, 1909, Fulton's original drawings for his first ship Clermont (1807) were discovered and the pioneer ship reconstructed for the Hudson-Fulton commemoration (Sept. 25 to Oct. 3, 1909). Seventeen crafts of various kinds with steam propulsion were built by Fulton before his death in 1815, including the first steam frigate and steam ferryboat. The original Clermont had vanished and seemingly no one knows about her fate. (Science.)

MOHAMMED DESTROYING IDOLS OF THE KAABAH OF MECCA

Mohammed (570 to 632) founded a new religion, Islam (resignation, submission to God). It spread rapidly, destroying Arabic heathenism. Its sacred volume is the Koran. Within 100 years of Mohammed's death, Islam had been carried into India, Persia and through Africa even into Spain. The Eastern Roman Empire, exposed to the fanatic drives of the Mohammedans, was for centuries the bulwark of European states against Moslem invasion. (World's History.)

THE LAW OF AREAS (Science)

According to Keppler's first law the orbit of each planet is an ellipse, with the sun (S) in one focus. The radius vector (Sa, Sf) change between a minimum (perihelion) and maximum (aphelion). Keppler's second law states, that in equal time the radius vector sweeps over equal areas. Area abS = area cdS = efS. Hence when the radius vectors are longer, the arc on the ellipse is shorter and vice versa. This means that the velocity of the planet is greatest at the perihelion (a-b) and smallest at the aphelion (e-f), one reason for the varying length of apparent solar days. (Fath: Elements of Astronomy.)

Floyd's Figures Are Too Modest

In spite of the fact that nobody is arguing with us we like to have the last word. We're almost ventriloquial in that habit.

Floyd is minimizing. We come from the old maximum school that claims everything, concedes nothing and borrows your own fountain pen to prove you are wrong.

We admit the soft impeachment about the 300,000 men working on beer. But Floyd forgets 600,000 who will have to take them home.

That may be a trifle optimistic on short notice. And we top Floyd's estimate of beer kegs by 3,000,000.

We think Floyd was too conservative all around the block. How about mustache wax in carload lots? How about 1,000 acres planted in sawdust?

Does sawdust grow that way? No. How about the men who must kick the sawdust around until it gets ripe?

And the old mirror artists? And the tailors who bend those white aprons around a 48 waist? And the three checkers who keep tabs on every honest bartender?

The checker-uppers are very essential to the new deal. That means work for plenty of bookkeepers. No, Mr. Gibbons, if we may call you that, when you shuffled your deck you left out all the aces.

You didn't even tap the surface or scratch the vast reservoirs of possibilities. The pretzel makers of Reading, Pennsylvania, are already planning a summer excursion to Atlantic City.

We don't claim to be an economic expert but $360,000,000 for brewery repairs ain't enough. We did that much damage ourself on that last night in 1920. Or was it 1919? We'll be fair about it, Mr. Gibbons, and split the difference.

You may be in China, Mr. Gibbons, when you read this. Or you may be in a volcano in Africa. Wherever you are, rise to your feet and stand corrected. We expect to figure out another list of by-products later on.

A Disappointing Session

Much Important Work Remains Undone as the Legislature Prepares to Adjourn.

The week's proceedings at Harrisburg did little to improve the legislative situation. The Republican organization and Gov. Gifford Pinchot "stood pat" on various matters over which there was disagreement, with the result that nothing was accomplished in respect to the solution of the poor relief problem, nor in respect to beer licensing, nor in respect to better regulation of the public utilities.

It has been a disappointing session, and there is no prospect of an improvement during the remaining days. Neither Gov. Pinchot nor the Republican organization shows any sign of yielding to the other. The Legislature is preparing to adjourn, and it seems probable that it will adjourn without action on some of the things that were deemed most important.

It will be little short of criminal if the Legislature should adjourn without making adequate arrangement for the relief of the unemployed. Some realization is now being shown of the amount of money that will be required for this work, but nothing is being done to raise the money. The Governor's plan to take over the collection of the personal property tax does not commend itself—it is too speculative.

The beer tax—if the Governor and the Legislature succeed in getting together on a beer tax bill—will be helpful. And some provision should be made for the utilization of the Dorrance $14,000,000 inheritance tax windfall for poor relief. But unless business improvement comes more rapidly than now seems likely, or unless social workers are wrong in their estimates, still other funds will be needed.

One of the bills at Harrisburg that seems doomed not to get out of committee is that providing for the incorporation of limited dividend housing companies to replace the slums of the cities with comfortable, sanitary dwellings for people of modest means, to be built with funds loaned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Selfishness is killing this legislation.

New York and Ohio have passed housing laws similar to that which the Pennsylvania Legislature is refusing to enact. New York City and Cleveland are proceeding to eradicate slum dwellings. The Chamber of Commerce and representatives of 25 Pittsburgh civic, social welfare and religious organizations have recommended the legislation. The Legislature's indifference is inexcusable.

The Judiciary General Committee of the Senate is slow in responding to the demand that it report favorably on Senator Frank J. Harris' bill for the regulation of billboards. This has had the effect of arousing the Civic Club, the Council for the Preservation of Natural Beauty in Pennsylvania and other organizations which seek to prevent defacement of the highways. The people are genuinely stirred up over the billboard nuisance.

The interest that has been aroused in the billboard problem is bound to have a beneficial effect, even if the desired legislation should not be enacted at this session. There is already a law forbidding the erection of signs on public property. Undoubtedly, as a result of the present agitation, there will be an insistent demand henceforth for the enforcement of the law.

Politicians would do well to take note of the rising indignation over the marring of the scenery with signs. The outlook is for a hot mayoralty campaign this summer. It is to be hoped that the candidates will restrain themselves if the temptation comes to emblazon their virtues on walls and telegraph poles, streets and sidewalks.

While it is taken for granted that Mayor John S. Herron will be a candidate for a full term, and will have the backing of the Republican machine controlled by Senator James J. Coyne, there is still uncertainty as to who will oppose him. The independents are confronted with the difficult task of choosing a candidate acceptable to all of the elements hostile to the Coyne machine. If the independent strength is divided between two candidates, Herron's chances will be much improved.

*The Mayor is obviously making a bid for the sup*port of citizens who disliked the Kline organization and policies. The announcement that James M. Clark is to be dismissed as Director of Public Safety and the place given to Harmar D. Denny, Jr., is just such a bid. While suspicious, because of Herron's ardent support of Mayor Charles H. Kline, the people will give the new Mayor proper credit if they receive a new deal and good municipal government.

One of the Kline cabinet members whom Mayor Herron is demoting is Richard W. Thompson, who is to be replaced as City Treasurer by H. Raymond Hilliard. There is no discredit in Thompson's demotion. He has been in the department for many years. When politicians make a mess of things he is called upon to straighten them out. Then he goes back to his old job as chief clerk.

Mr. Denny will have a fine opportunity for good service as Director of Public Safety. It is to be hoped that Herron and Coyne will give him a free hand in cleaning up the city, and not dictate to him what he shall do and what he shall not do, as Clark is said to have been dictated to. There is a sentimental interest in the Denny appointment; his family has been prominent in Pittsburgh since Revolutionary times, and an ancestor, Maj. Ebenezer Denny, was Pittsburgh's first Mayor.

*The Cap and Gown Club of the University of Pitts*burgh is introducing this year, in its annual production, to be staged at the Nixon Theater next week, an innovation that will appeal to many Pittsburghers. The show, "All to the Point," is a pageant portraying frontier life as lived here in 1789. The Historical Society has co-operated, and the Civic Club is sponsoring the first performance.

Prominent families of early Pittsburgh figure in the story of "All to the Point," and the scenes represent Fort Pitt, the historic Green Tree Inn, Smithfield street as it was more than a century ago, and the Pittsburgh Academy from which the University of Pittsburgh sprang. The show promises to have educational value as well as entertainment value, and should be worth seeing.

Educational value and entertainment value also will be found in good measure in the American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. There is, for instance, a thought-provoking article on the mystery of Easter Island, that lonely spot in the Pacific with huge stone idols of great antiquity. Then there is an interesting story about a niece and nephew of Gov Pinchot.

Looking for Trouble

"The proposed embargo powers will surely lead us into wars."

Such is the considered judgment of James Hamilton Lewis, distinguished and patriotic United States Senator from Illinois and a national leader in the Democratic Party.

Because of his convictions Senator Lewis has aligned himself with Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, and others in opposition to the resolution which was jammed through the House of Representatives last week to give the President unlimited authority to declare arms embargoes against foreign nations involved in wars.

The resolution went before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and action was postponed until next week.

It is that committee's duty—as it is the Senate's duty—to stop this dangerous embargo proposal.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 22.—Quick peeps at celebrities: Irving Thalberg never sleeps the night before an important conference . . . Mrs. M. H. Aylesworth looks in on Radio City every day . . . Joe Cook is a midnight chili hound . . Clifton Webb goes to no parties without his mother.

Tallulah Bankhead sends back to the Alabama general store for a bucket of red drops now and then . . . Coxey, the insurance man, knows every cartoonist in America . . . Charles B. Driscoll still carries his boyhood Barlow . . . Helen Morgan uses a dash of brandy in her morning coffee.

Aunt Jemima eats scarcely anything . . . And Bide Dudley has the appetite of a wolf . . . Peter Arno's extravagance is neckties . . . Georgette Cohan's dog begins limping when you say "Poor Doggie" . . . Fay Marbe has practiced dancing three hours a day for 10 years.

Robert Garland has never tasted cake . . . Paul Whiteman has 80 gift cigaret cases . . . Adolph Zukor carries change in a snap purse . . . Antonio Scotti lost 15 pounds after his operatic retirement.

One of Broadway's beloved good fellows is Robert Hague, oil magnate and husband of Mary Lewis, the singer. His life is bright with the legend of many generosities to those down on their luck and his private pension list is probably the largest in town. He is a bluff gentleman whose lot is cast often with the burly crews of the many oil tankers he controls. Several weeks after his marriage to the operatic lady, he remarked one evening after dinner: "They tell me you are a singer. Go ahead and entertain me." And he promptly snored through an hour's program of trilling runs and high C's.

The nimble dancing man, Clifton Webb, was shunted to his feather-footed career as a result of a disappointed ambition. He ached to be a painter and George Bellowes was his idol. Unable to continue art lessons, he went into the Metropolitan ballet to tide over his fortunes. Out of this grew his interest and proficiency in the dance. And perhaps the best dancer of his type since Vernon Castle.

Another art—or perhaps knack—Webb has acquired in his professional upswing is a jauntiness in dress few actors acquire. He can set off a lapel flower in a way that sends gentlemen buckitty-buckitty to florists and the dip he gives to a Homberg or the angle to a high hat has kept innumerable Brummels before mirrors for hours. Just practicing.

Among Jimmy Walker's closest friends in New York is Walter Herrick, known to intimates as "Duke" and who was appointed Park Commissioner by the former Mayor. They were schoolboys together and classmates at college, and, save for Herrick's mustache, could pass for twins. Walker to Herrick is "Jim," the invariable name used by those who knew Walker before he entered politics and went over the horizon.

Still another striking resemblance is that between Mae West and Blossom Seeley. The similarity is only marked when they are standing still or sitting. Miss West's walk, like the brittle of high-tension steel, is a certain give-away. No one strides so impudently.

* * *

It was interesting, too, at a dinner the other evening to note how astonishingly Eddie Foy, Jr., is, in fuller maturity, resembling his lovable father. Even to the uncontrollable upshoot of hair in the back. There is droop also to the side of his mouth when he talks and that tilt of the head so notably Foyian. One more entry in this Replica Derby and I'm done. Close your eyes when Frank Morgan is talking and if it doesn't sound like Lionel Barrymore there'll be a cookie for you on the second shelf of the pantry. Right next to the spice box.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"OUT OF THE DEPTHS HAVE I CRIED UNTO THEE, O LORD!"

Out of such depths as I have never known before. For life was easy. I was young and strong. I worked, succeeded, laughed at obstacles—and boasted I was "master of my fate."

But now I'm poor, bewildered. I'm a failure, God. My pride is broken, and my dreams are done. And there are shadows I can't understand. Lord, through the darkness, reach your gentle hand—

"LORD, HEAR MY VOICE: LET THINE EARS BE ATTENTIVE TO THE VOICE OF MY SUPPLICATIONS."

I'm weak and stupid — and You're wise and strong. The wheeling stars, the roaring tides, are Yours. Besides Your vastness, men are grains of sand. And yet—You made me! Called me Your own child. Then, Father, hear me—for Your child's afraid!

"IF THOU, LORD, SHOULDST MARK INIQUITIES, O LORD, WHO SHALL STAND? BUT THERE IS FORGIVENESS WITH THEE—

Yes, I forgot you, God, when things were bright. I felt so sure of my own pride and might—why should I need Your help to put my life aright? But now, forgive me; for I'm lost in the night!

"I WAIT FOR THE LORD; MY SOUL DOTH WAIT, AND IN HIS WORD DO I HOPE."

I wait—for You! How strange those words now seem! How many times I've waited, and how often hoped; but not for You. For yesterday, my Father, You were just a name—an old belief that some men thought was true. Sometimes I went to church, or said a prayer; but I was never sure that You could hear. Or, if You heard, that You would really care. Yet now You seem the only only One who's near—the only one who understands my fear.

"MY SOUL WAITETH FOR THE LORD MORE THAN THEY THAT WATCH FOR THE MORNING."

Those dreadful, lonely watches through the night! Men—women—in the darkness, wondering. What will the far-off morning bring? A dying child—will that dear face be gone? A tarnished name—will help from some source come?

What heavens and hells we wait for, with the dawn? I've known them all—and yet I'm waiting now, more eagrly, for You to come. More than pride or power, health or happiness—more, even, than the life of one I loved the best—I need You, Father; need Your friendliness.

". . . FOR WITH THE LORD THERE IS MERCY, AND REDEMPTION."

For now I know what once I could not see. You, only, have the strength to set me free. My strength is nothing. All my little schemes are like pale, withered leaves tossed by the wind.

But Life goes on!
And You are Life!
And if I'll dare to live,
And dare to trust and give Myself to life, regardless of the risk—
THEN I SHALL WIN!
AND, WITH YOU, RIDE THE STARS—AND KNOW YOUR POWER—AND PEACE.

JANE'S BEAU

By Winifred Black

Papa and mamma have been a good deal worried about Jane and her beau.

Jane is a lovely girl, good as gold, sweet as a peach, smart as a whip, and thoroughly, completely and inexorably modern. She is a co-ed—majored in psychology and stood rather high in upper mathematics.

Jane wants to do something and be something in the world. She never dreamed that she was doing all that studying just to settle down and make a real home for a regular fellow.

But somehow she couldn't seem to get started right. There weren't any jobs for Jane.

That was humiliating, but it wasn't tragic.

Jane's father had a good job in a good firm and Jane was awfully fond of her mother and she and mother and dad had good times together in their comfortable home.

Then all at once, mind you, Jane fell in love. She's been in love now for two years and a half, and that seems to be that.

But he can't get a job.

Nothing very tragic about that either. His mother is a rather well-to-do widow and she doesn't in the least mind having Jane's beau at home to help her manage the younger children.

Or she didn't mind till she fell in love herself—and now she wants to marry a good old friend who has always been fond of her.

Jane's beau is so disgusted with the idea of his mother marrying again that he turns white when he thinks of it.

He and Jane have been making quite another plan. They've worked it all out. Can't see why it wouldn't be a good idea for beau's mother to give them a wedding and take them home to live with her till beau gets a job of his own.

Now, Jane and beau will have to make Jane's father look at the thing in a reasonable modern light. Jane's mother is already half convinced, but Jane's father—I'm afraid he's hopeless. He was brought up to think that sons should take care of fathers and mothers and besides things are not going so well at the office for Jane's father—

Hard on the young people, isn't it?

Just a bit hard on the old people, too—when you come to think of it. And between you and me—don't you think that mother and dad have about done their part when they have brought their children into the world and educated them and given them a good home and loving care?

Doesn't a parent's responsibility ever drop from his shoulders?

THIS IS MUSSOLINI, THE REAL ONE

We return to the interesting Mr. Hitler, who believes that he can help Germany by driving out some of its greatest scientists, artists, industrialists and teachers because they happen to be as the learned Prof. Franck, Nobel prize winner and teacher in Goettingen University, puts it, "Germans of Jewish descent,"

Prof. Franck's defiance of Hitler, resigning from the university which Hitler controls, and expressing his determination to remain and work in Germany, will interest the world.

Prof. Franck fought four years in the big war, in the German army, and won the Iron Cross (First Class) for bravery, and, in addition, he won the Nobel prize in physics—a brave soldier, a great scientist. Mr. Hitler will find it hard to belittle that combination.

Today we print two pictures that show the difference between the two dictators of Western Europe—Mussolini and Hitler. Few readers will have difficulty in answering the question at the top of this column: "Which is the REAL one?"

You will see in Hitler's career a repetition of the old fable of the bullfrog and the ox. The bullfrog, trying to imitate the ox, blew himself up, swelling out, and finally exploded with a loud report. And he was much smaller than the ox at the time of the explosion.

Mr. Hitler in his striving to be another Mussolini will also explode. Just when, early history will tell you.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you are a guest in the home of a friend, be careful of your actions and your speech in the presence of other friends to whom you may be introduced during your visit.

Recounting some of the episodes of former years, you are likely to mention some things which, to the newer friends of your host or hostess, may not be accepted as being really as harmless as you know them to be.

Perhaps your friends have established themselves on a higher plane than they maintained in the days you knew them in your old town.

The years have made improvements and broadened the thoughts of those whom you remember as the centers of the episodes you relate.

Naturally, coming as a guest and as an old friend, you should not let your conversation reflect unfavorably on the past of these friends you visit.

What you may think very amusing, and highly entertaining, may cast a slur on the reputation of these friends who, in the newer residence, have never been questioned as to standing and who do no deserve to be.

So you cause your hosts to be misjudged and certainly do not add anything to your own credit.

Have more consideration for the interests of those who entertain you.
